$1,500,000 ROAD THROUGH SWAMP APPROVED BY U. S.

Board To Contract for Half Million in Paving and Bridge Work February 1, Chairman Wilburn Announces.

M'RAE TO DIRECT SURVEY IN SWAMP

Project Will Cut Off Forty Miles on Florida Highway and Provide Scenic Marvels.

The state highway board Thursday announced that it will begin a survey of the Okefenokee swamp Monday for the building of a new $1,500,000 paved road through the heart of the swamp, tentatively agreed upon by the federal bureau of public roads.

If the highway is found feasible and the federal bureau carries out its agreement, the new road running from Waycross to Lake City, Fla., not only will cut off 40 miles between the two cities but will provide one of the most beautiful scenic routes in the United States and give Florida resorts on both the east and west coasts a new traffic outlet to the north. The survey, for which the highway board has appropriated $7,500 will be under the direction of Judge Max L. McRae, south Georgia commissioner for the board.

At the same time Chairman W. Eugene Wilburn announced the board would contract for $500,000 worth of state and federal aid paving, grading and bridge projects on February 1, when the first letting of the new year is conducted.

A number of important projects, including the building of a bridge on the Tallapoosa county road between Reidsville and the new state prison on which construction is being started, are in the group on which bids were called Thursday.

Most Important Project. Judge McRae said Thursday the Okefenokee swamp highway is the most important project ever undertaken by the highway department. The survey was arranged after the Ware county delegation in the legislature, composed of Russell Twitty and John W. Bennett Jr. and Joe Mitchell, clerk of the superior court had reported.

HOLC Lending Scope May Be Increased

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—John H. Fahy, chairman of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, said today at the White House an increase would be asked in the lending scope of the corporation.

The corporation has allotted the $2,000,000,000 of its authorized bond issue to home owners. There had been serious discussion of restricting the loans to that amount.

"It is quite obvious," Fahy said, "that there will be an increase in the bond issue for loans but the amount has not been decided upon."

Capital rumors have mentioned a $1,000,000,000 increase.

ROME, Jan. 17.—(UP)—Priests had a hard time today finding horses to bless on the feast day of St. Anthony, patron saint of animals in Italy. Taxis have driven them from the streets.

In previous years, the place before the church of St. Eusebio, where the ceremonies are held, was packed with horses, freshly combed and bright with ribbons.

Both Houses Set Out To Enact 5-Point Major Bill Outlined by White House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—With a presidential guide before it, congress today set out to enact a five-phased program to help the jobless, the aged, mothers and their children and closer to safeguard health.

In one bundle, President Roosevelt sent to the capitol a message outlining what he thought was necessary to establish "sound means toward a greater future economic security of the American people," and a report portraying the conclusions reached in a half-year study by a large group of experts.

General opinion in the capitol was that the move represented the most sweeping effort in the country's history to provide against the "hazards" of life.

Omnibus bills were brought forward by Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, and Representative Lewis, democrat, Maryland.

They provided for unemployment insurance borne by a three per cent payroll tax; a three-point old age pension plan for those over 65, at the center of which would be employer-employee contributions through payroll taxes; joint federal-state aid for mothers, dependent and crippled children; a broadening of public health service with a further study of health insurance possibilities; and a tie-up between unemployment insurance and job assurance through public works.

The government would contribute $38,000,000 the first year and $217,000,000 for several years. Dissatisfaction with these figures was expressed in both official congressional quarters, however, and there were indications they would be changed.

At the same time, the administration laid plans for drawing up sample bills which will be carried before state legislatures by directors of the emergency council to point them the way to co-operate with the federal government.

President Roosevelt asked for prompt action by congress and said 44 state legislatures were in session or would meet soon. To meet this request, the house ways and means committee was organized.

LONG TERMS GIVEN RUSSIAN PLOTTERS

Zinovieff and Kamenoff Among 19 Sentenced by Military Collegium.

MOSCOW, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Gregory Zinovieff and Leo Kamenoff, old bolshevik leaders, today were sentenced to long terms after their conviction at Leningrad of participation in counter-revolutionary activities.

An official announcement this evening confirmed unofficial reports that the two men, members of the triumvirate that governed the soviet union after the death of Nikolai Lenin, had escaped the death penalty.

The announcement said the military collegium of the supreme court, which tried the two, sentenced to Zinovieff to 10 years, the maximum permitted under soviet law, and Kamenoff to five. Seventeen codefendants were given prison terms varying from 5 to 10 years.

The court held the testimony against the 19 proved the existence of a Moscow counter-revolutionary center which directed the operations of the Leninist group accused of complicity in the murder of Sergei Kiroff, soviet official, at Leningrad December 1.

One hundred seventeen persons already have been executed for terrorism as Joseph Stalin, fired by the murder of his co-worker Kiroff, ordered out at alleged traitors, counter-revolutionaries and opponents of the soviet regime.

Federal Control Urged Over All U. S. Waters

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(UP)—National control of all rivers and streams in the United States was proposed tonight by the water planning committee of the national resources board.

The committee advocated a national policy for all running water "from the desert trickle that may make an acre or two productive to the rushing flood waters of the Mississippi."

A list of specific projects which the committee said should rank first in any planning was attached to the report.

KEY SAYS RAIDERS WON'T GET LIQUOR

"Johnson May Raid My Store, But He'll Get No Liquor," Says Mayor.

Edwin F. Johnson, chairman of the police committee of the Fulton county commissioners, may raid Mayor James L. Key's liquor store when it is established, but he won't get any liquor.

That was Key's answer Thursday to a notice Johnson served Wednesday on Atlanta's chief executive when Key made a futile attempt to obtain an appropriation of $355,000 from commissioners to help run Atlanta charity hospitals, and when refused asked that they let "my liquor store alone."

The mayor said "when the store is opened, and he is confident it will be in operation by April 1, the city will keep service on all legal documents directed against it, but none of the liquor will be surrendered."

He also said the store may be raided, but Mr. Johnson or any other county official "can't raid the jury box, and that is where my store will be vindicated."

"I want to say right now," Mr. Johnson said, "that the following is what he will find: 'I. He won't get a drop of liquor, and...

"When that store is opened, the liquor will be in the custody of the Atlanta police department and we do not propose it shall be hijacked."

"We will accept service on any legal documents issued against it, but we do not propose to deliver any of the liquor to anyone, who comes around and says he is an enforcement officer."

"We will close the store on court order, but the final test will be before a jury of Fulton county citizens. They are to determine whether the store is to operate and they alone will do it. I do not propose to let a bunch of high-salaried county officials run this store. It is going to be conducted for the benefit of the citizens of Atlanta and Fulton county and every time of profit is going into the city treasury to lighten the tax load our citizens have been forced to carry already too long."

Loftin Lauds Georgia Bar For Legal Reform Program

Enforcement and more respect for law must be instilled in the minds of the people or there may be a change in government, Scott M. Loftin, Jacksonville, president of the American Bar Association, told more than 600 Georgia lawyers Thursday night at the mid-winter meeting of the Georgia Bar Association at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

The program of the American Bar Association, calling for measures which would raise the standards of the legal profession, was roundly applauded by the Georgia lawyers.

The head of the national legal association commended the legislative program of the Georgia lawyers and urged members of the general assembly to give the two bills now before their body full consideration and cooperation. One of the bills, providing for changes in present judicial procedure, was explained by H. H. Lovejoy, of LaGrange, former president of the State Bar Association, and the other, a bill providing for the corporation of Georgia lawyers, was explained by Harley F. Lawson, of Hawkinsville, also a former president of the Georgia Bar Association.

STRIKE IS MARKED BY NEW DISORDERS

Deputies Release Nausea, Tear Gas To Disperse Trouble-Makers.

ROSSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Strike disorders flared afresh at the Richmond Hosiery Mills here today, scarcely 24 hours after Georgia national guardsmen had been sent home after 10 days of strike duty.

Fist fights between strikers and workers occurred. Special deputies were forced to use nausea and tear gas to quell disturbances. The third case of workers' automobiles being fired upon was reported to authorities.

The height of the trouble came in early afternoon, when shifts changed at the mill. As mill employees reported for work, a crowd of about 250 pickets assembled in front of the mill gates taunted them. Several fights took place, but not one was seriously hurt.

Gas Released. After warning the strikers to move, Sheriff J. C. Keown ordered his men to release the gas. Two charges of tear gas and one of nausea gas were fired.

The nausea gas affected few, although one deputy became so ill from it that he was put to bed. The tear gas, however, brought tears to the eyes of scores of the pickets.

Deputies then moved the crowd more than 200 yards away from the mill entrance and compelled everyone who approached the plant to keep moving. Meanwhile, the strikers kept muttering threats against the workers.

William Frazier, head of the local union of American Federation of Hosiery Workers, said he and the strikers would insist on having their rights, even if they had to use physical force as well as legal action to get them.

He said he planned to confer with attorneys on the rights of pickets under the laws of Georgia.

Women Fired On. Authorities said Mrs. Thula Shipley and Miss Victoria Schuchman, employees at the mill's Dining Room, plant, told today someone fired on them as they approached the plant, but that although several bullets struck the car they were not injured.

A crowd formed at the Daisy mill early today and resisted efforts to take a coal car into the plant. After a crowd yesterday stopped a truck driver and refused to allow him to take a load of coal into the Daisy plant.

U. S. AGENTS ADMIT THEY HAVE JAILED SURVIVING BARKER

Backbone of Kidnap Gang Broken by Arrest of Brother of Desperado Slain in Florida.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Arrest of Arthur (Doc) Barker, Bremer kidnap suspect, on January 8, was announced by Attorney-General Cummings.

The attorney-general's announcement came after J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division of investigation, had declared the backbone of the Barker-Karpis gang "had been broken."

Fred Barker and Kate (Ma) Barker, brother and mother of Arthur, were killed by federal agents yesterday at Oklawaha, Fla.

Cummings said Arthur Barker had been captured about the same time that federal agents shot and killed Russell Gibson, a minor member of the mob, in Chicago.

Ocala, Fla., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Department of justice agents who yesterday "broke the backbone" of a suspected kidnaping gang by killing a woman and her son in a blistering machine gun battle at Oklawaha, tonight continued a relentless search for other members of the mob believed in hiding in Florida.

A coroner's jury today went through the formality of exonerating the dozen agents who laid siege to a fortified summer home on the bank of Lake Weir which has been rented by the Barker-Karpis gang. Fred Barker and his mother, Kate, were slain in the six-hour bombardment.

An agent at the inquest today admitted heavy reinforcements had been sent to the state by the department, and that they were concentrated in the details of Miami. But he declined to elaborate.

DEBACCHERS ANGRY OVER PATRONAGE

House Group Forces Calling of Party Caucus To Study Situation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A group of angry house democrats today forced the calling of a party caucus at which they propose to present their indignant views about the patronage situation.

From the preliminaries, many high officials would—if they attend—leave with burning ears. Postmaster-General Farley, however, was one cabinet officer against whom there appeared little animus.

A faint smile crossed the face of some senators who, they believe, are getting more than their share of jobs.

Several of the house group also had verbal brickbats wrapped for some senators who, they believe, are getting more than their share of jobs.

Representative Taylor, of Colorado, caucus chairman, but said he would as soon as he obtained some more signatures. McFarlane had more than 40 signatures, and only 25 were required.

Key Positions Charged. "These bureaucrats have been acting all-powerful," McFarlane said, "Republicans are in key positions in our whole emergency set-up, practically all of them."

"I'm trying to get a square deal for the democrats," he said.

It was made clear the petition was not directed at anything Postmaster-General Farley had done, one signer saying: "He's a democrat, and he recognizes that we are too."

The democrats continued today to investigate patronage. The 21-man Texas delegation, for instance, designated Representatives Blanton, Patman and Dies to find out how many jobs downtown were credited against each member's patronage.

They found some things that surprised them. One of the investigators found he was charged with only three jobs. A Texas chairman of a potent house committee had 47, and a Texas senator was credited with 86.

Taylor, insisting he would do nothing to block a caucus, said his idea was that the senators had been getting too much consideration and house members too little.

The "man on the flying trapeze" was in Grady hospital Thursday night with a badly bruised hip.

While floating through the air with the greatest of ease, Billie DeLoach of 450 Robinson avenue, S. E., lost his grip on his home-made trapeze and "flew down and so boom." Doctors said he wasn't seriously hurt.

Legislators Also Move at Record Speed in Pushing Talmadge Bills Through Destined Course

Death Due to Fracture of Skull, Coroner Testifies; Gas Station Man Tells Story.

By JOHN FERRIES. FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Bruno Hauptmann's nerve cracked at last today.

Madened by a federal agent's even description of the carpenter's hiding place for thousands in Lindbergh ransom bills, he leaped to his feet in the courtroom where he is on trial for his life.

"Mister, mister, you stop lying! You are telling a story!" he shouted, shaking his finger.

Trembling, his jaws clenched, he was pulled back into his chair by guards as Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, presiding, rebuked him quietly.

The outburst, Bruno's first open display of the tension that has been gathering in his pale face for the 12 days since his trial for murder of the Lindbergh baby came as state witnesses told how the carpenter spent and hid part of the $500,000 ransom.

Special Agent Thomas H. Sisk, of the department of justice, stood and, relating how officers found the ransom money in Hauptmann's Bronx home and garage last September, told a witness told how the carpenter spent and hid part of the $500,000 ransom.

Some of the ransom bills were in the garage woodwork, but Sisk told of an empty creek he found buried beneath the floor.

"There was no money in it, but Sisk related."

"We questioned Hauptmann as to that," he denied knowing anything about it, but the next day when he was questioned he admitted he had that money in there three weeks before he was arrested."

"In the jug?" asked Attorney-General David T. Wilentz.

"In that jug," replied Sisk. A few feet away, Hauptmann jumped from his chair and shouted the command to "stop lying." His face was pale, his accent harsh and guttural.

Sisk stared coldly at the carpenter as the words burst out. The jurors gazed at him in amazement, and he turned to the little courtroom, rose to their feet and craned their necks.

A faint smile crossed the face of Mrs. Hauptmann, the prisoner's wife.

Told To Keep Quiet. "One moment," said Justice Trenchard. "Let me suggest to the defendant that he keep quiet. If he has any observations to make, let him make them quietly through counsel."

Deputy Sheriff Hovey Low and State Trooper Stockbridge, who sat on either side of Hauptmann, reached upward and jerked him back into his seat.

A deeper pallor spread over the carpenter's face. He muttered under his breath at the witness: "—"

"He's cracking now," said County Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck. Low slipped his arm around Hauptmann's shoulders, holding him in a firm grip, lest he try again to get to his feet.

of the credit department of the Fourth National bank and continued in that position when the Fourth National bank became part of the First National bank. Later he was elected president of the First National Bank and Trust Company, in Macon, continuing there until he became head of the Savannah bank.

Mr. Glenn announced Mr. Hunter will continue to reside in Savannah, inasmuch as his duties will consist primarily of contacting and serving the customers of the Trust Company of Georgia and its associated banks in the southern part of the state.

The Trust Company of Georgia Associates is the wholly owned subsidiary of the Trust Company of Georgia and owns a controlling interest of the Liberty National Bank and Trust Company, of Savannah; the First National Bank and Trust Company, of Macon; the Fourth National bank, of Columbus; the First National bank, of Rome, and the National Exchange bank, of Augusta.

"TOOK ALL KINDS OF PILLS, THEN CEREAL BROUGHT RELIEF"

Constipation, Due to Insufficient "Bulk," Relieved by Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

A fine letter from Mrs. Snyder:

"I have had trouble" with my bowels for years, taking all kinds of pills and drugs, with no relief.

"One year ago, I saw Kellogg's ALL-BRAN and bought a package. I have good movements every day. I am 78 years old. I am telling my friends what bran has done for me."—Mrs. Sallie Snyder, 918 N. Craft Ave., Hollywood, Cal.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Research shows that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B, as well as iron, an element of the blood.

Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient to correct common constipation. With each meal, in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the "bulk" in leafy vegetables. How much better to use this food in place of patent medicines.

At all grocers in the red-and-green packages. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DONT SAY SAUSAGE
SAY... Copeland's

YOU see, not all sausage is pure, all-pork.

When you ask for Copeland's you get the best that this porken have to offer, spiced, seasoned and blended according to the Copeland family's secret recipe.

Try Copeland's Famous Country Sausage just once. Certainly it costs more, but when you taste the difference in quality and flavor you'll say it's worth a few extra pennies for so supreme a meal-time treat.

Negroes Sentenced For Manslaughter

Robert Miles and James Miles, negroes, were given four-to-five and one-year sentences, respectively, when a jury in Fulton superior court Thursday returned a manslaughter verdict on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Willie Brown, negro, who died from wounds inflicted with a flat iron last July.

Two burglary cases resulted in jury convictions of Curtis Gray, white, and Nathaniel Patrick, negro. Gray was given one to four years by Judge G. H. Howard. He was charged with breaking into the Blue Ribbon cafe. Patrick got one to five years when he pleaded guilty to breaking into the storehouse of C. L. Price.

Elton Humphries was sentenced by Judge W. E. Thomas to serve three to five years for larceny of an automobile owned by J. P. Heit and was given an additional year for driving while intoxicated.

S. C. Governor Asks Road Board To Quit

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 17.—(AP) Governor Olin D. Johnston pressed his inaugural demand that the entire state highway commission resign by writing them today calling for their immediate retirement.

The governor announced he was taking the action in line with a statement in his inaugural address Tuesday calling for Chief Commissioner Ben M. Sawyer and the 14 circuit commissioners to leave office so he could reorganize the road department. Approximately one-third of the commissioners openly refused to resign while others remained silent. No resignations have reached the governor's office.

HOWELL FINISHES AVIATION REPORT

Roosevelt To Submit Important Document to Congress Next Week.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—After conferring for more than an hour with President Roosevelt at the White House today, Chairman Clark Howell of the federal aviation commission, announced that the final report of the commission is now complete and will be ready for submission to congress next week.

Earlier in the week the commission called at the White House to present a preliminary draft of its report and the purpose of the visit today was to go over details with the president before sending the important document to the government printing office for publication. Chairman Howell was accompanied by the full commission with his conference with the chief executive this afternoon.

President Roosevelt, who it was said, approved the broad recommendations of the special air board, will transmit the report to the house and senate in a special message. Although the act of congress under which the commission was created gives the body until February 1 to file a report its work has been advanced to completion well ahead of the time limit. Expectations of the special air board will be placed in the hands of congress by Wednesday or Thursday of next week. While keen interest is manifest in the contents of the report members of the commission have declined to comment on the various speculative reports that have been printed on the possibility of a new permanent commission being created to administer civil aeronautical affairs. The board's recommendations are being guarded with the closest secrecy.

Appointed by President Roosevelt last June, the board has conducted one of the most comprehensive surveys ever undertaken in field of aeronautics, covering both civil and military aviation. After preliminary studies of air problems in the United States at home and abroad the commission started a formal hearing program December 2. More than 200 witnesses appeared in

Officials Renew Oaths of Service to Georgia

Four state officials began new terms of office Thursday when they were given their oaths of office by Governor Eugene Talmadge in the presence of a large host of relatives and friends. The officials are shown above being sworn in. From left to right they are Comptroller General William B. Harrison, Secretary of State John B. Wilson, State Treasurer George B. Hamilton and Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans. All were re-elected in the November election after being renominated at the September primary. Staff photo.

VEGETABLE MEN PLAN GROW-AT-HOME DRIVE

Georgia vegetable growers moved Thursday to keep at home the $50,000,000 annually spent outside the state for vegetables and to raise surplus vegetables to be marketed elsewhere.

After discussing plans for the formation of a vegetable growers' association in the state, an organization committee of seven, which met here Thursday, called an organization meeting to be held at the Dempsey hotel in Macon February 15.

The committee compiled a list of 3,000 farmers, businessmen, produce buyers, agricultural experts and others interested in the question, and agreed to invite them to the meeting.

The plan proposed for the betterment of the vegetable market involves a program which begins with enriching the soil and ends with the marketing of products at a fair profit to growers.

The proposed association is to have four aims, its sponsors say. They are: To learn and disseminate information on modern methods of producing and marketing crops; to exchange ideas and methods based on experience and experience; to buy and sell co-operatively to meet the demands of the larger markets, and to introduce legislation for the improvement of all.

The plan also calls for the organization of county associations as units of the state body.

Members of the organization committee are R. F. Sams Jr., of Clarkston, chairman; D. A. Russell, of Avondale; Harry L. Brown, director of extension work at the University of Georgia; Dr. George F. Fier, specialist in vegetable growing at the state university; E. F. McGee, DeKalb county agent; S. D. Truitt, Fulton county agent, and H. F. Romans, editor of Southern Cultivator.

Cator Woolford, Atlanta businessman, also has been assisting in the organization work.

Famine, Cold Kill Thousands of Chinese

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)
LANCOWU, Kansu, China, Jan. 17.—Thousands of residents of this Chinese frontier province will never see the return of bountiful harvests they have hoped next spring would bring.

Bitter winter, accompanied by sub-zero temperatures, came first, distributing throughout the famine-stricken area the success of death.

Bad crops and droughts, holding sway for the past five years, have left thousands homeless and starving. Prospects of improved conditions next season buoyed their hopes. Now merciless cold and snow are striking down the emaciated victims almost within sight of relief.

Wealthy Chinese here and in other Kansu cities are striving valiantly to assist the unfortunates through daily distribution of bowls of soup. But the meager sustenance is proving far too inadequate to enable numberless Chinese to endure winter's rigors.

3,500,000 New Cars Industry's 1935 Aim

DETROIT, Jan. 17.—(UP)—Automobile manufacturers, greeted with an overwhelming wave of buying in the public's reaction to the introduction of 1935 models, tonight entered the active phase of planning their year's efforts.

Manufacturers' representatives gathered here planned intensive sales campaigns, an extensive buildup of dealer forces throughout the country, increases in production facilities and methods by which dealers will be given the opportunity to operate on a more profitable basis.

A production schedule for the entire industry indicates that at least 3,500,000 cars will be run off the assembly lines during the coming year.

The new year has already shown a volume of business in excess of that of last year, dealers reported. The industry produced 119,000 cars in January of last year. Conservative estimates are that nearly 250,000 units will be produced this month.

MOVE IS LAUNCHED FOR CENTRAL BANK

Father Coughlin, Senator Thomas Unite on Monetary Program.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(UP)—Monetary reformists led by Senator Charles McNary, Democrat, Oklahoma, and Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, united Wednesday on a program for creation of a government-owned central bank and a dollar cut loose from fixed relationship to gold.

Members of the tremendous "if" in the monetary situation while the supreme court deliberates the constitutionality of administration monetary policy, the group nevertheless went ahead to formulate its own program, calling for the following changes in currency policies:

(1) Conversion of the 12 federal reserve banks into a central bank, government-owned and operated, with complete control over issuing currency.

(2) Remonetization of silver.

(3) Detachment of the dollar from any fixed relationship to gold.

(4) Cash payment of the soldiers' bonus.

(5) Control of the value of the dollar through operations of an equalization fund.

(6) Congressional investigation to discover who held the outstanding governmental obligations on January 1, 1935.

(7) Issuance by a central bank of non-interest bearing legal tender notes to take the place of issuing tax-exempt interest-bearing bonds as at present.

(8) Retirement of existing United States obligations by exchange of legal tender notes of issue from a central bank.

As former Senator Robert L. Owen, Oklahoma, presented the proposals to more than 100 delegates who gathered at the Hotel Statler, the program was approved by a vote of 75,000,000 Americans, the government studied means to protect its monetary policies if the supreme court decides against the government in the gold clause cases.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. conferred with Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings, apparently to discuss probable legislation if the supreme court holds against the government. His only comment after the conference was that he was "optimistic."

Officials were cautious in making any comment but it was said informally that the United States was not considering returning to the old gold dollar based on 23.22 grains of gold.

President Roosevelt said he could not comment until after the court had announced its decision.

LEAGUE RETURNS SAAR TO GERMANY

By the Associated Press.

The League of Nations Thursday formally voted to transfer the Saar basin territory to German sovereignty March 1.

Assurances by Saar refugees arriving in France that two communists had been killed at Neuenkirchen, meanwhile, were approved by an Associated Press correspondent who visited Neuenkirchen.

As France and Germany got together on conditions for transfer of the Saar, which voted overwhelmingly in Sunday's plebiscite to rejoin the reich, the delicacy of the situation along the Saar frontier was emphasized by the arrest near Metz of two Saar gendarmes who entered French territory.

METZ, France—French officials held for investigation two Saar gendarmes who penetrated 25 yards into French territory pursuing two women fugitives, as moving companies along the frontier received many orders from persons planning to leave the Saar.

SARREBRUECKEN, France—A host of refugees from the Saar, still in the face of forced flight from their homes, brought with them bundles containing their few possessions and reports that two communists had been slain at Neuenkirchen. Elsewhere anti-Germans were beaten, they reported.

SUGZBACH, Saar Basin Territory.—One hundred terrified anti-Hitlerites were herded into an unused French mine dormitory. A man named Lorenz was beaten and dragged to the police station.

SAARBRUECKEN—A flight of French francs from the Saar led to estimates Germany would not be able to assemble more than half the $35,000,000 francs (about $5,575,000) she agreed to pay France for the Saar mines.

GENEVA.—Germany accepted France's demand that she receive the Saar under the terms of the Versailles treaty, which demilitarized the border zone. The League council met immediately to proclaim the territory's formal transfer.

BRUSSELS—Belgian authorities took steps to repress agitators crying for the return to Germany of the Eupen and Malmédy cantons, annexed to Belgium under the Versailles treaty.

HITLER SAYS PEACE IS OF REICH

MUNICH, Jan. 11.—(UP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler gave his first newspaper interview since the Saar plebiscite at the Nazi brown house today and again pledged Germany to a program of peace.

Talking to G. Ward Price, of the London Daily Mail, Hitler asserted that when he spoke of peace he expressed the most profound and sincere wishes of the German people.

"Germany, for her part, never will break the peace," he said. "But if anybody attacks us we will find he has fallen into a hornet's nest, because we love freedom just as much as we love peace."

"I know the horrors of war only too well," Hitler said. "The only gainers from a new struggle would be the communists."

"Without compulsion we have assured France we will make no more territorial demands. We have abandoned any notions of revenge on our own accord. At the same time we have equally and solemnly assured the world that no pressure, need or force ever will lead us to sacrifice our honor or our right to equality with all nations."

"I regard it as indispensable to announce these facts again," Hitler said, raising his voice for emphasis.

Hitler believed that treaties are without value unless they are concluded between nations which value and respect their honor.

"I will hesitate a long time before I will tie the German nation with any sort of pact or agreement, the consequences of which cannot be unmistakably foreseen," Hitler said.

The dictator made no effort to conceal his feelings.

National Upturn in Business Predicted By Newark Banker in A. I. B. Address Here

Prominent bankers who assembled Thursday night at the Capital City Club for the annual dinner-dance of the Atlanta Chapter of the American Institute of Banking. Left to right, front row are, H. E. Bassett, of Dallas; H. R. Smith, of San Francisco; Charles Ellery, national president of A. I. B., who was the principal speaker; Maynard W. E. Park, national vice president, of Kansas City, and F. R. Curda, of Chicago. Back row, left to right, P. C. Jansen, of Buffalo, N. Y.; W. H. Meacham, president of the Atlanta chapter; G. K. Strickland, of Memphis; Freeman Strickland, of Atlanta; E. W. Newton, of Cleveland; T. E. Kellar, of Boston; and Hal L. Stiles, of Portland, Ore. The men are officers or executive committee members of A. I. B.

A national business upswing was predicted Thursday night by Charles F. Ellery, president of the American Institute of Banking, speaking at the dinner given by the Atlanta chapter of the institute at the Capital City Club.

Mr. Ellery, who is assistant vice president of the Fidelity Union Trust Company, of Newark, N. J., and other national officers and committeemen of the A. I. B., were welcomed by Robert S. Maddox, prominent Atlanta banker.

The president's speech preceded the annual dance of the Atlanta chapter, of which W. H. Meacham is president.

"The past year has been one of increasing bank deposits, which indicated a return of public confidence during 1934 following the national banking holiday in 1933," said President Ellery.

"Banks have found it difficult to obtain good loans, although being very desirous of placing the funds deposited with them in loans which would aid not only themselves but business in general," he declared.

"Municipalities have retrenched their programs in recent months and have effected a return of confidence for their bond issues which had been lacking," Ellery asserted. He said if such economies are continued the general effect will be good.

"Real estate and mortgages have also apparently started to rebound from the depths, which were reached during 1934," he added. "In general, rentals seem better and vacancies are less numerous. There is a growing realization that real estate is bearing too great a part of the tax burden."

He pointed out that public buying is increasing on a national scale and said he believed the nation as a whole is recovering from the depression.

Another of the activities, classified as "socially useful projects, which has given many men work, is the archaeological self-respecting work relief program to supplant the dole, Georgia today has 50,000 able-bodied men earning their bread on millions of dollars in government projects.

Last March, in anticipation of the president's move away from direct support of the unemployed, Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia emergency relief administrator, began to shift men to jobs of usefulness.

The program of construction, which includes work on the levee at Augusta, one of the largest flood control projects in the southeast, is meeting critical standards for relief labor on building for immediate usefulness and permanent value. From 300 to 1,200 men have been employed for months on the levee project.

On April 1, last, experienced personnel was ready to provide work with only budgetary requirements to be met.

Beginning with 15,000 persons weekly, the number of persons who received work under the relief administration during the last nine months of 1934 grew each month.

In August—a trying month in the agricultural states, the number of employed on general and construction activities was approximately 34,000 each week and in December the number reached 65,500 weekly.

Those on the rolls are permitted to work only the amount of their relief budget, which means the number working any month exceeds the average weekly figure.

Approximately $4,000,000 was spent for labor on construction jobs on public property.

Projects of this type included work on public buildings, hospitals, roads and streets, municipal and county buildings, flood control, recreation grounds, sewers, airports and a fish hatchery.

Recreation activity included a swimming pool and clubhouse at Athens, bringing to that town of approximately 20,000 inhabitants its only facility of the kind.

FLORIDA INDICTS JURIST FOR FRAUD

Miami Grand Jury Charges Bribery in Case of Tifton Youth.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 11.—(UP)—The grand jury today indicted Criminal Court Judge E. C. Collins on charges of accepting a bribe and embezzlement. Judge Collins, immediate past president of the Florida Baptist convention, is now attending the annual meeting of the convention at Deland.

Sheriff D. C. Coleman, confirming the grand jury's action, said he held capias for the arrest of Judge Collins when he returned to Miami.

The indictment charged Judge Collins accepted $270 to "set aside and vacate sentence theretofore pronounced upon J. W. Davis Jr., and withhold the passing of sentence."

It is charged the jurist received the $270 on September 25, 1934, and later was sent money orders for $100 and $85.10 by J. W. Davis Sr., of Jacksonville, Ala., father of the Davis mentioned in the indictment.

County jail records show young Davis was returned here from Tifton, Ga., to face a charge of automobile theft. The record shows he pleaded guilty, and that sentence was ultimately suspended.

It is charged in the embezzlement indictment Judge Collins should have sentenced Davis or imposed a fine not exceeding $5,000 under the law, and that he converted the money received from the elder Davis to his own use.

He gained nationwide publicity when he sentenced Giuseppe Zangara to 80 years in state's prison for the wounding of four persons in an attempt to assassinate President-elect Roosevelt.

Zangara was later convicted of the murder of Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, and electrocuted.

HALIFAX, Jan. 11.—(UP)—The British freighter Kenkerry, stranded on the dangerous Sambro ledge, was in danger of breaking up tonight off the Nova Scotia coast. Shortly before midnight the ship asked for lifeboats from Duncan Cove and began lowering her own boats in the stormy seas.

My Cookery News Notes

By RUTH CHAMBERS

Editor's Note: The writer is Ruth Chambers, staff member of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, recognized authority on cookery of all kinds, especially meat cooking, and the pleasures of meat. Her series of articles on "My Cookery News Notes" has developed a good deal of new information about cooking meat, which is necessary to old ideas. This series of articles will give our readers this new information in helpful form, and will also give a series of excellent recipes and suggestions for serving the meat course of the meal.

USE SUNDRIES FOR VARIETY

"Fancy meats," "meat specialties," "sundries," or "extra edible parts," no matter what one calls them—liver, heart, tongue, kidneys, and sweetbreads are meats which will delight your families. Include one of the sundries in your menus weekly, and you'll receive a vote of thanks for the welcome variations.

Sundries are high in food value and for the most part low in price. The liver and kidneys are rich sources of iron. As you know, we must include iron in the diet as a prevention for anemia, as well as a cure. Vitamins A and B are found in abundance in such glandular tissues as the liver, sweetbreads and kidneys. In fact, liver contains most of all the vitamins except Vitamin C.

Don't Ignore These!
Many of the sundries, even though they are high in food value and low in price, are ignored by the housewife. Heart, for instance, ranks next to liver in the amount of iron it contains and is an "economy" meat because women have passed it by so often. I'm wondering if the reason you don't prepare the sundries is because you don't know how. If that's the reason, here is a field in which you may adventure and here are the recipes for your experimenting with sundries.

Liver Patties.
1 1/2 pounds liver
2 cups cracker crumbs
1/4 cup minced onion
1/4 teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons bacon drippings
1/8 teaspoon marjoram
1 teaspoon salt
Parboil liver and put through meat chopper. Mix thoroughly with other ingredients, adding enough liquid in which liver was cooked to moisten. Shape into patties. Wrap with strips of bacon, fasten with a toothpick. Fry in bacon drippings or lard.

Stuffed Heart en Casserole
1 beef heart
1 cup dried bread crumbs
1 tablespoon shortening
1 sliced onion, minced
1 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons canned tomatoes
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper
After the heart has been soaked in cold water for an hour parboil it for 20 minutes. Fill with a dressing made with the other ingredients, and tie securely. Place in a covered casserole. Mix the following ingredients and pour over the heart:

1 cup canned tomatoes
1 slice onion, minced
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup celery, diced
1 tablespoon butter
Dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven for three hours. Add more water as the liquid cooks away. Thicken sauce with flour and water mixed to a smooth paste.

Cal's Brains—Sweetbread Style.
Here is a way of preparing calf's brains which makes a delicious luncheon dish for a party.

2 calves' brains
2 tablespoons canned mushrooms
2 tablespoons shortening
1 1/2 pounds liver
2 cups cracker crumbs
1/4 cup minced onion
1/4 teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons bacon drippings
1/8 teaspoon marjoram
1 teaspoon salt
Parboil liver and put through meat chopper. Mix thoroughly with other ingredients, adding enough liquid in which liver was cooked to moisten. Shape into patties. Wrap with strips of bacon, fasten with a toothpick. Fry in bacon drippings or lard.

Better Breakfasts

Think now of the delights that your family will encounter in tomorrow morning's bowls of Heinz Rice Flakes. The tantalizing crackle as the cream is poured. The crisp chewiness that makes them toothsome. The well-fed feeling when the bowls are empty. Think of the healthfulness—finest rice cooked and toasted, with a gentle, natural regulative element added to every flake... Think of Heinz Breakfast Wheat, too—wheat cereal that is quick to cook and a joy to take. The best hot cereal you ever tasted.

THREE MEALS A DAY

KITCHEN TESTED RECIPES

by Sally Saver

Now that the feasting and fun of the holiday season are over, we settle down to plain living again. So let's consider a good substantial family dinner, hearty enough to take the chill off a January evening. First there is soup. Steaming bowls of rich soup. And, by the way, if you can unearth grandmother's old soup tureen you will add a new, smart touch to the table and increase the ease and simplicity of your service. The crisp salad greens and relishes, a hot main dish and a seasonable fruit dessert. Top this off with good, hot coffee and you'll have a meal any family would relish on a winter's evening. The following menus and recipes will lend zest to a post-holiday dining.

Now, believe it or not, you are going to like spinach! All right—taste this soup! Crisp fresh spinach, sweet cream and a touch of seasoning—a simple story. But what a soup! It ought to come in a silver tureen, it ought to be in the Waldorf, it ought to have a fancy French name—in lights! But we just say it's spinach—and you'll like it as you do the other Heinz cream-classics, mushroom, oyster, and asparagus. Taste it—soon!

-a MAN'S meal

Memories of yesterday and appetites of today make Boston baked beans a favorite food of men. Plump navy beans, hand selected, thoroughly baked in dry oven heat, soaked in sweet molasses sauce and garnished with luscious pork—these men remember from the slow-prepared feasts of childhood. And these same authentic Boston baked beans they devour in glee from the yellow labeled tins of Heinz... We make three other kinds, too. But be sure the beans you buy are Heinz—oven-baked!

in center, pour in gravy and cover with very thin slices of onion. Onions will brown easily if spread with cream or melted butter. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 40 minutes.
Apple Butter Drop Cookies.
Cream 1/2 cup butter, add 1 1/4 cups sugar, and mix together thoroughly. Add 1 unbeaten egg and beat until smooth. Stir 1 teaspoon soda into 1/2 cup pure apple butter, and blend with the butter mixture. Add 1/2 cup broken nut meats, 12 marshmallows, chopped, and 1/2 box shredded coconut. Sift 2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour—sifted once before measuring—with 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1/2 teaspoon salt, and add to butter mixture alternately with 1/4 cup milk, a small amount at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven—375 degrees F. for about 8 minutes, or until delicately browned.

Mock Chicken Chops.
Combine 2 cups finely diced cooked pork or veal, 1 1/2 cups cooked rice and 2 slightly beaten eggs and season with salt and pepper to taste. Form into croquettes, pressing rice and meat firmly together. Dip in flour, coating completely, and fry in 2 tablespoons butter until golden brown on both sides. Remove chops to warm platter and garnish with watercress. Blend 1 1/2 teaspoons flour with the fat left in the skillet, add one 10-ounce can cream of mushroom soup and stir until the consistency of brown gravy. Place in bowl and serve over chops.

ADAMS-CATES CLOSES

MAJOR REALTY DEALS

Leases totaling approximately $200,000 and involving business property in both Georgia and Tennessee have been consummated since January 1 by Adams-Cates Company, it was announced Thursday by John O. Adams, an official of the concern.

The Bresler Shoe Company, of Boston, has leased the four-story building at 97 Pryor street from the Carroll Latimer estate; the Nu-Enamel Atlanta Company has taken quarters at 88-A Whitehall street; the Darling Shop has leased the premises at 1132-34 Broadway, Columbus, Ga., for a junior department store; H. Kessler & Company has rented the Walden Land Company store on Main street, Thomaston, Ga., for a five-cent-to-five-dollar store; and Edwards Shoe Stores has leased the store at 406 Gay street, Knoxville, Tenn. Two important leases likewise have been negotiated by Forrest and Frank Adams: C. H. Rice Company, Inc., has leased the three-story building at 100-102 Whitehall street, the transaction being handled by John O. Crowley; and the Truck Equipment Company, Inc., has leased 11 Cain street, with W. R. Cox conducting the negotiations.

namon and 4 tablespoons brown sugar. Pour into buttered baking dish and sprinkle top with a mixture of brown sugar and cinnamon. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 40 minutes.

In the next 60 days the Georgia legislature will decide whether or not it will repeal a law that has been a thorn in the flesh to all farmers and conservationists of the state. I refer to the anti-trap law that was passed in 1929.

This law did not forbid trapping. It simply prohibited the use of steel traps. That was enough. The check on the increase was removed from these animals and they acted accordingly. They became very abundant and began to damage crops. Muskrats have cut down literally thousands of dollars' worth of standing corn in north and middle Georgia. The mink have increased all over the state and nightly raids on henhouses seem to be the order of the day. A splendid game animal, the fox, has become exceedingly abundant and ought to be reduced in numbers for the economic welfare of the state. The opossum and the coon, both meat-eating animals, have increased in some sections so that the damage they have done is far above the value of their hides. Such a condition is bad and ought not to be allowed to continue.

In view of the fact that the law was enacted without thought of the biological side actions that would inevitably result, it is to the control of animals that we must now direct our attention. We should not allow unrestricted trapping at all. We should know exactly what we are doing when we do it. We should tell the trapper after the first season that he will be allowed so many furs of each species, in order to perpetuate the fur crop and bring a reasonable return to the trapper. We must conserve a fur resource. Say what you will, this anti-trap law has had its good points. It has allowed a big increase in the beavers to the advantage of the state at large, even though some considerable numbers of farmers have been seriously damaged by the depredations those animals have made on crops and poultry.

The harvest is ready and we must harvest it. What the future holds if the legislature fails to make the proper provisions for trapping I leave to your imagination. The farmers are tired of the present law. They feel—and rightly, too—that they are entitled to protection from these animals. They will stand just so much and then they are going to trap. They will kill the animals when the fur is poor. The game wardens will have to make cases. There cannot be found 12 good men and true who would con-

THE COTTON PLAN

The international agreement for the stabilization of cotton exports and prices proposed in the plan advanced by the national administration contemplates a sound and permanent solution of the problems confronting the south's chief product and the country's largest export commodity, but the collapse of efforts in the past to reach such agreements between wheat-producing nations gives but little encouragement that a similar agreement may be successfully consummated between the cotton-producing nations.

The wheat agreement sought to stabilize prices by control of surpluses, but the several negotiations held resulted in failure because of the refusal of Argentina, one of the largest wheat-producing countries, to accept the quota assigned to it. Even had the agreement been signed by all the nations involved, there would have been no assurance that the plan would have worked successfully.

While the prospect of success for an agreement limited solely to the amount of acreage planted in cotton each year in the various nations are, at least, slim, there would be far better chance for agreements based on reciprocal trade with provisions for cotton acreage control.

There is no reason why, and it is probable the administration has this in mind, the United States in entering into such treaties cannot specify only the amount of commodities to be traded in between the contract countries, but in addition in the case of cotton-producing nations, how much of the staple they shall raise.

It is pointed out that the agreement plan is still nebulous and that it will be developed as its consideration advances from stage to stage.

In this open-minded attitude of the administration lies the greatest promise of successful achievement of the objectives sought—increased exports of American cotton and the prevention of increased production elsewhere, with the certain collapse of prices that would follow.

Cotton has never faced a more serious crisis than the one that must now be solved. The reduced American production, and the higher prices that have come, have decreased exports, and yet there is still a huge surplus in existence. There is no danger of a shortage in American cotton, even with a record low crop this year, but the higher prices necessary for the prosperity of the American grower have automatically cut exports and boosted foreign production.

It is a problem that must be considered from all of its many difficult angles, and the most hopeful sign is not in the details of the plan suggested at the White House conference, but in the fact that the administration is giving intense study to the problem of what to do for the cotton growers and exporters of the country.

A MERITORIOUS BILL

The bill by Mrs. Helen Coxon, representative from Long county, calling for the placing of red lights on all vehicles, whatever their motive power, using the public thoroughfares of the state, is directed at the elimination of a frequent cause of serious accidents on the highways.

Under the motor vehicle laws all automobiles, trucks and trailers must conspicuously display red lights in the rear when operated upon or standing on a public thoroughfare at night. These laws, applying only to motor-driven vehicles, do not regulate the operation of horse-drawn vehicles.

The result is that the highways of Georgia are filled at night with buggies and wagons, generally displaying no lights whatsoever, and

Personal Experiences.

Another year of almost uninterrupted flying over Europe lies behind this correspondent. Out of the blur of 365 days packed with the restless pursuit of news in which every hour brought its own dramatic, comic or even tragic incident, some luminous points appear in retrospect as perhaps worthy of chronicling. The Taurus and the Carpathian mountains on the east and the Grand Atlas on the south over which I did not venture, but I did fly over the Alps from Vienna, following those deep gullies, which are marked on the map as valleys and through which the draft roars like a clap of thunder. My pilot on that occasion was Vittorio Mussolini, the eldest son of the Duce.

That happened to be the time when the Italian army was mobilized in the Brenner Pass, just after the assassination of Herr Doctor Dollfus. I saw the myriad of tents against the green slopes of the hills. Innocent little discs of pure white they seemed from on high, but charged with potential death just the same. My faithful goggles had been temporarily confiscated before that trip started and every passenger had been stripped to be examined for trick cameras. However, my eyes are quite good, even if I say it myself.

When I read in the public print a few days later that the Italian forces on the Brenner amounted to but 50,000 men, a mere handful, I said nothing. Half the trick of journalism, you see, consists in keeping things under your own hat. It's like the art of juggling, in which the more the voice is the great and most difficult accomplishment. This does not take away that many believe like the bull of Bashan and imagine such roaring to be euphonic at that.

And then you also learn to understand why the immortal gods up there on their Olympian mountain throne in the sky are so angry with the mortals. From the clouds all the works of man, his proudest achievements look so foolishly thin, puny, puny and petty. Cities are colored like toys, and the little boats on the railway towers are darning needles. Railway lines are fluttering ribbons to bind the hair of maidens fair dancing in the meadows and the Simion-Orient express, the most ambitious flyer on the continent, looks like a tooth-pick for the baby!

You learn a little geography, too. For instance, that Germany is not as brown as the hell boys would make it appear; that Italy is really but a limestone desert and a glaring desert at that, with a narrow strip of green along the coast and the Simion-Orient tower ways in the wind; that the Swiss lakes have silver bottoms and that, but this is not geography. The peasants of old was a consummate psychologist when he wrote: "The mountains shall bring peace to the people and the little hills righteousness!"

WELL, WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

Inquiring about the effect of smoking when one has duodenal (gastric, peptic, stomach or intestinal) ulcer, a young woman remarks: "I enjoy reading your articles and believe they are sound and practical, despite the fact that you so disconcertingly call your readers 'nitwits,' and old fogies."

In the same mail a young man inquires whether chewing tobacco has any ill effects on the system. He is a careful not to swallow any of the juice. He goes on to say, this highly intelligent youth, that if, as I insist, there is no absorption of the nicotine, then if one doesn't swallow any tobacco juice there should be no absorption through the mucous membrane of the mouth.

What would the young woman call the young man? And what shall I call them both?

Smoking has brought on duodenal ulcer complex in a great many cases, in all the stages of the disease. It is an ordinary present when there is an ulcer or ulcers in the stomach or duodenum.

Smoking is notorious as a cause of hyperchlorhydria, secretion of an excessively acid gastric juice, heartburn, waterbrash, or what the dumb ones call "sour stomach" or dyspepsia.

The attempt to tell the great morose population that smoking is the thing to feel relief whenever you happen to feel tired, exhausted, weary, worried or anxious about anything, is going to do a lot of harm to the race. There are already far too many neurotic cumbering the earth. The most vicious as teaching the unwary public that a dose of aspirin or bromoseltzer is quick relief for such sensations.

It matters little whether the smoker inhales or not, so far as the injurious effects of tobacco are concerned. Inhaling merely exposes a larger area of mucous membrane to the smoke, so that the effect will be produced more quickly. Nor does it matter whether the tobacco chewer swallows the juice or not, so far as the injurious effects of tobacco are concerned.

Quantity production, however, hasn't reduced the cost of acquittals.

But the soil will still provide a living if you don't try to live out of paper sacks and tanks.

Hitler is a wonder. When the Kaiser wished to alarm Europe, he had to rattle his saber instead of his tongue.

When the leader of an unarmed nation can cause a war scare with his mouth, the world's chief trouble seems to be nerves.

A moralist says we aren't ashamed of the right things. Then why does the waiter present the check face down?

Personal Experiences.

Another year of almost uninterrupted flying over Europe lies behind this correspondent. Out of the blur of 365 days packed with the restless pursuit of news in which every hour brought its own dramatic, comic or even tragic incident, some luminous points appear in retrospect as perhaps worthy of chronicling. The Taurus and the Carpathian mountains on the east and the Grand Atlas on the south over which I did not venture, but I did fly over the Alps from Vienna, following those deep gullies, which are marked on the map as valleys and through which the draft roars like a clap of thunder. My pilot on that occasion was Vittorio Mussolini, the eldest son of the Duce.

That happened to be the time when the Italian army was mobilized in the Brenner Pass, just after the assassination of Herr Doctor Dollfus. I saw the myriad of tents against the green slopes of the hills. Innocent little discs of pure white they seemed from on high, but charged with potential death just the same. My faithful goggles had been temporarily confiscated before that trip started and every passenger had been stripped to be examined for trick cameras. However, my eyes are quite good, even if I say it myself.

When I read in the public print a few days later that the Italian forces on the Brenner amounted to but 50,000 men, a mere handful, I said nothing. Half the trick of journalism, you see, consists in keeping things under your own hat. It's like the art of juggling, in which the more the voice is the great and most difficult accomplishment. This does not take away that many believe like the bull of Bashan and imagine such roaring to be euphonic at that.

And then you also learn to understand why the immortal gods up there on their Olympian mountain throne in the sky are so angry with the mortals. From the clouds all the works of man, his proudest achievements look so foolishly thin, puny, puny and petty. Cities are colored like toys, and the little boats on the railway towers are darning needles. Railway lines are fluttering ribbons to bind the hair of maidens fair dancing in the meadows and the Simion-Orient express, the most ambitious flyer on the continent, looks like a tooth-pick for the baby!

You learn a little geography, too. For instance, that Germany is not as brown as the hell boys would make it appear; that Italy is really but a limestone desert and a glaring desert at that, with a narrow strip of green along the coast and the Simion-Orient tower ways in the wind; that the Swiss lakes have silver bottoms and that, but this is not geography. The peasants of old was a consummate psychologist when he wrote: "The mountains shall bring peace to the people and the little hills righteousness!"

WELL, WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

Inquiring about the effect of smoking when one has duodenal (gastric, peptic, stomach or intestinal) ulcer, a young woman remarks: "I enjoy reading your articles and believe they are sound and practical, despite the fact that you so disconcertingly call your readers 'nitwits,' and old fogies."

In the same mail a young man inquires whether chewing tobacco has any ill effects on the system. He is a careful not to swallow any of the juice. He goes on to say, this highly intelligent youth, that if, as I insist, there is no absorption of the nicotine, then if one doesn't swallow any tobacco juice there should be no absorption through the mucous membrane of the mouth.

What would the young woman call the young man? And what shall I call them both?

Smoking has brought on duodenal ulcer complex in a great many cases, in all the stages of the disease. It is an ordinary present when there is an ulcer or ulcers in the stomach or duodenum.

Smoking is notorious as a cause of hyperchlorhydria, secretion of an excessively acid gastric juice, heartburn, waterbrash, or what the dumb ones call "sour stomach" or dyspepsia.

The attempt to tell the great morose population that smoking is the thing to feel relief whenever you happen to feel tired, exhausted, weary, worried or anxious about anything, is going to do a lot of harm to the race. There are already far too many neurotic cumbering the earth. The most vicious as teaching the unwary public that a dose of aspirin or bromoseltzer is quick relief for such sensations.

It matters little whether the smoker inhales or not, so far as the injurious effects of tobacco are concerned. Inhaling merely exposes a larger area of mucous membrane to the smoke, so that the effect will be produced more quickly. Nor does it matter whether the tobacco chewer swallows the juice or not, so far as the injurious effects of tobacco are concerned.

Quantity production, however, hasn't reduced the cost of acquittals.

But the soil will still provide a living if you don't try to live out of paper sacks and tanks.

Hitler is a wonder. When the Kaiser wished to alarm Europe, he had to rattle his saber instead of his tongue.

When the leader of an unarmed nation can cause a war scare with his mouth, the world's chief trouble seems to be nerves.

A moralist says we aren't ashamed of the right things. Then why does the waiter present the check face down?

NO, NO, NO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Too many negatives eventually make you positive. For instance, there is the present predicament of the abused Mr. Ickes, secretary of the interior.

You can ascertain rather definitely that Mr. Ickes did not have his undercoat worn, Mr. Glavis, tap the telephone wire of a fellow cabinet officer, Postmaster-General Farley. Nor did Mr. Roosevelt become aroused at any snooping by the same Ickes agent around the Redville homesteading project.

The first lady did not inspire the presidential secretary, Louis Howe, to tell Mr. Ickes that he would have to get rid of his right hand man, Mr. Burlew, as well as Mr. Glavis. Nor does the president deny himself knowing anything about that.

These denials have been widely circulated, except, perhaps, the one about tapping Mr. Farley's wire. What happened was that Mr. Ickes denied at a press conference recently that there had been any wire-tapping. The name of Postmaster-General Farley was not mentioned. There really was no need to mention it. The erroneous story was all over town.

TAPPING. If two negatives make an affirmative, as most grammarians insist, these numerous denials, with which Mr. Ickes now is virtually surrounded, certainly indicate that he and Mr. Glavis have been very busy in very high places.

That deduction is partially suggested also by what is behind the wire-tapping rumor. Postmaster-General Farley has been heard to complain privately to some of his associates that every time he calls the interior department there is a click on the wire. He had no suspicion that his own office or hotel home wire was tapped. Yet, certain circumstantial evidence in addition to the clicking indicated that a third party kept record of some calls coming into the interior department, PWA, all administration and all the other little kingdoms which Mr. Ickes rules. Murmurs on the same subject have been heard from Postmaster-General Farley's lieutenants, who say they have had similar experiences.

It may be that they are overly suspicious where Messrs. Ickes and Glavis are concerned, but that is beside the point.

SPARKS. Through all this smoke you may discern the spark of undeniable truth that all Washington has great respect for the modest little gay-pay-oo established by Mr. Glavis. He has only about 150 regular employees, but borrowings from the justice department and other bureaus keep it generally around 500. The enormous reports are high tribute to the efficiency of his organization. But that is not the biggest spark.

In the old deal days, occasionally, some senator complained that his office had been ransacked at night. Once, the artistic ferret, Gaston Means, gleefully confessed that he went through a few senatorial offices occasionally for the justice department. But no case above the grade of an ordinary senatorial ransacking has ever been rumored before.

So the least you can say of overworked Mr. Ickes is that he has established a new high for denials, when he can deny investigation of the pet project of many of the president's family and tapping the wire of a cabinet officer. The only thing left to deny now is that he investigated the past of President Roosevelt himself.

RELIEF TROUBLE. Mr. Roosevelt's new relief program is heading up into heavy trouble. Inner stirrings already are noticeable among building contractors and laborers.

The contractors have an idea that Mr. Roosevelt's plan will put them out of business because he wants the work done by the government as fast as possible. They have been exerting pressure at the White House.

The labor boys are fuming about the proposal to keep government wages down below private wages. They regard this as an attack on wage scales generally and they appear to have some support inside the New Deal. Houser Moffett said recently the 1926 wage scale is the desirable goal. A recent release from his office, although carefully worded, also tended to knock down the idea that building costs are too high.

This wage matter will be one of the biggest inner issues before the forthcoming A. F. of L., executive council meeting.

PRESSURE. The building trades union labor situation is not being helped by the civil war now raging inside it. Deputy NRA Administrator Berry will not confirm or deny it, but he has notified the two warring factions of the A. F. of L. building trades department that he will resign unless they compose their differences. He is a big union man himself (head of the pressmen) and is fast getting around to the view that he is wasting his building trades code efforts as long as the building trades warriors continue to fight among themselves. Peace is expected shortly, for that reason or others.

BIDDLES. Chairman Biddle, of the national labor relations board, once regaled an English lord at breakfast with that famed Philadelphia dish called scrapple. The lord liked it, but must have been confused about the name of it, for he later granted a public interview in which he said: "I dined with some splendid people named Scapple who gave me Biddles for breakfast."

For that reason, Mr. Biddle now is known at the labor board as Mr. Scapple.

Reilly A 'Flop.'

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 17.—Viewed from this distance, Mr. Ickes' defense of Bruno Hauptmann has been something of a flop and the learned barrister may pardon some member of his admirer public for wondering when he is going to get hot and what he is waiting for.

Up to this time, Mr. Reilly has devoted himself largely to two lines of thought in his effort to vindicate the unfortunate German carpenter whose only error was his great kindness in consenting to safeguard $10,000 cash for a penniless friend who said, "Here, mind this for me while I dash over to Europe and die."

He has probed through various graveyards uttering not very subtle accusations against four suspects who cannot testify and has endeavored to smear the reputations of two persons called to give evidence for the state.

As an old fan of Mr. Reilly's who has enjoyed many a chuckle over his alms and the beautiful life of justice, your correspondent is unable to hand him much of his work when he finally tackled a tough one. With millions of inhabitants resting in the silent cities of the dead, he mentioned only four who might have killed the lambskin baby and with millions of live ones available to tell to smear only Betty Gow and old Doctor Condon.

Careless. If the game is worth playing at all it is worth working playing well and, but lost the nomination to Clarence D. Martin.

Schwellenbach is heavy-voiced and one of the leading orators of the Washington state bar. He won a Pacific coast oratorical crown in 1918. Former president of the University of Washington board of regents, he worked earnestly to "take the university out of politics" and was instrumental in bringing Dr. L. P. Siegel from Pittsburgh as its new president. Schwellenbach also is former president of the university alumni association and former state commander of the American Legion.

He has pledged himself to support President Roosevelt "wherever he leads."

STATE TO SURVEY NEW ROAD ROUTE IN OKEFENOKEE

That Thomas H. MacDonald, director of the federal bureau of public roads, had committed the error of the highway providing a survey conducted by the state showed it to be feasible and funds now on hand had not been expended when the survey is completed.

"I do not know whether in this country there would be more beautiful route," Judge McKee said. "Our plans call for the building of this road straight through the heart of the swamp. It will bring thousands of tourists through Georgia and not only will help our state but the Florida resorts to be served through Lake City also."

Representatives Twitty and Bennett, speaking in behalf of themselves and Mr. Mitchell, said the plan had been under consideration by the federal bureau for some time and they had enlisted the support of Congressman Braswell Dean, of Alma, who represents their district, and Senators R. F. George and Richard B. Russell Jr.

Confident of Road. "We are confident the road is feasible and the survey will show it," the Ware representatives said. "We are just as confident the road is a certainty."

The projects on which bids were called for Thursday follow: Paving of 9.000 miles on the Richmond-Dawson road in Webster county, beginning at the Stewart-Webster county line and extending to the Red-Webster county line.

Paving of 8.995 miles on the Waycross-Tifton road in Atkinson county, beginning at Willacoochee and ending at the Red-Webster county line.

Paving of 4.214 miles on the Blakely-Colquitt road in Early county, beginning at Blakely Creek and ending just south of Wambly.

Paving of 5.238 miles on the Gray-Monticello road in Jasper county, beginning at the Jasper county line and ending 5.6 miles south of Monticello.

Paving of 3.004 miles on the Millen-Statesboro road in Jenkins county, beginning near Skull creek and ending 2.5 miles north of the Jenkins-Bulloch county line.

Interstate Highway. Paving of 5.000 miles on the Monticello, Fla.-Thomasville, Ga. road in Thomas county, beginning at the south end of the present paving and extending south.

Paving of 1.045 miles on the Leary-Camilla road in Baker county within the city of Newton.

Construction of four bridges on the Reidsville-Metter highway in Candler county between Metter and the Tattall county line.

Construction of a bridge over creek four miles east of Henderson, in Houston county, on the Montezuma-Hawkinsville highway.

Construction of a bridge over the Ochopee river in Tattall county on the Reidsville-State Prison Farm road.

Construction of a bridge over Rocky Comfort creek in Glascock county between Gibson and the Jefferson county line.

Construction of a new bridge over the Matton, Dublin & Savannah railroad in Twiggs county on the Macon-Jefferson road, three miles south of Dry Branch.

Bruno in Outburst During Testimony of Federal Agent.

whose son Hauptmann is accused of stealing and killing, remained one of the calmest persons in the old Hunterdon county courtroom.

In the front of the courtroom state troopers, detectives and federal agents, present to testify, moved instinctively forward. But there was no need for them.

Stockbridge kept a strong grip on one of the prisoner's arms. The deputy sheriff never relaxed his hold.

All the jurors seemed barred by the details of the body's finding and the witnesses, including Dr. Charles A. Mitchell, Mercer county medical examiner, who performed the autopsy, spared nothing.

Newspapermen acquainted with morgues stirred usually, as one witness told how he had lifted the baby's body on a stick. Mrs. Rosie Pili's face showed grandmotherly grief, and once Voochess covered his eyes with his hand.

Usually pale, Mrs. Ethel Stockton, the juror who has a 7-year-old child, listened, twisting her handkerchief in a tight ball. Once she passed her hand across her forehead. She seemed almost in tears.

Colonel Lindbergh sat stiffly beside his friend and attorney, Colonel Henry Breckinridge. Neither the brown head nor the silver one moved as the retelling proceeded from the finding to the autopsy and the testimony of the witnesses.

Mrs. May Brelsford, the tenth juror, whose son was running messages in the balcony, sat with bent head.

Second U. S. Agent.

Sisk was the second federal agent to testify. He was wearing a dark suit and tie, and was looking directly at the jury.

Bruno's defenders fought every step of the way as the prosecution sought to show that the ransom money was not the same as the money found in the car.

Children's Coughs
Need Creomulsion

Always get the best, fastest and surest treatment for your child's cough or cold. Prudent mothers more and more are turning to Creomulsion for any cough or cold remedy.

Creomulsion emulsifies creosote with six other important medicinal elements—it is truly an elegant prescription. It is not a cheap remedy, but contains no narcotics and your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion. (adv.)

Weak Women

MANY women both young and middle-aged suffer from periodic pains in side or back—from catarrhal drains, "heat flashes," they should try that vegetable tonic favorably known for sixty years as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Read this: "After childbirth I became weak and suffered from dizzy headaches—my whole body felt sick," said Mrs. J. W. Buck of 1913 Ellis St., August 1934. "I was much improved after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a short time. It gave me new strength and made me feel that I had the right amount of energy to carry on."

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

"Sorry to tell you. There was a stickup at the garage where your father works and..."

"Is he hurt? Quick... tell me!"

"No, he's all right. It was your brother. I guess. Not serious. Shot in the shoulder."

"Oh... Where is he now?"

"Over at Mercy. They sent me up here to let you folks know."

"Thank you so much. I'll get dressed and go down... right away."

"I'd wait till morning if I was you, miss. He's under guard. Just while they're getting things cleared. They might not let you talk to him yet."

"I see. Where is his father? Are you sure he wasn't hurt?"

"He wasn't. He's down at headquarters."

"Why?" she demanded fearfully.

"I guess they wanted to talk to him. Sergeant had an idea it might be an inside job. You always got to figure on things like that."

"Jean said you forgot your lunch. She asked me to bring it down when I came in."

John Sawyer deposited the package on the corner of his father's desk in the office in the Central garage. He stood waiting uncertainly.

"That was very thoughtful of you, son."

John Sawyer looked up with a smile from the pile of fuel slips he was checking. "I must have been a little mixed-up tonight. They asked me to come in two hours later than usual and stay on a while in the morning..."

The day man wanted some time off. I was beginning to think I'd have to go hungry tonight."

"That's all right."

"Would you like to sit down and keep me company for a while?"

"Guess not," John glanced apprehensively at the clock. "It's pretty late."

"He admitted."

"So it is. I didn't realize it was quite so... early. Everything all right down at the paper?"

"Sure."

Several weeks before, to the delight of the Sawyer family, John Sawyer had succeeded in getting the boy a position in the circulation department of the Times.

"That's fine. Good night, son. And thank you for coming down."

"All right. I'm going out this way..."

John knew where the key hangs, didn't you?"

"I know." He disappeared through a rear door into the car storage room. Sawyer looked after him, a wistful expression in his dark eyes. If only John would let him get a little closer. They could do so much for each other these days. He must wait. No use trying to hurry the boy after all that had happened to drive them apart.

With a sigh, the father turned back to his work. He completed tallying the slips and was reaching for his parcel of lunch when the street door opened.

Two men entered.

There was but one light burning, a lamp under a shade directly above the desk where Sawyer sat. Its rays fell upon one of the newcomers standing on the other side of the long counter. His companion lingered in the shadowy background.

"Looking for service?" Sawyer inquired with a smile, as he left his chair and came forward. He was looking into a swarthy face, cut by a grim mouth. The stranger's eyes were concealed by his hat brim.

"Yeah," was the swift answer.

"Stick 'em up, you!"

John Sawyer found himself looking into the muzzle of a pistol. Slowly his hands went up. He was dazed by the suddenness of it all. He was aware that the second man had slipped swiftly through the gate at the end of the counter. The light was extinguished, leaving the office illuminated faintly by a street lamp without.

"Now then, pop... back over to your chair and sit down. Keep your hands where I can see 'em, too."

Sawyer obeyed in a daze. A thousand thoughts seemed to race through his mind.

With a sickening pang he remembered that the door of the small safe under the counter was closed. But not locked! What a fool he had been not thinking of that! Saturday night. Sunday morning, now. The afternoon and evening receipts in the cash drawer. Perspiration broke out on his forehead.

"Boys."

"Shut up."

The man who snarled that over his shoulder was down on his knees in front of the safe. There came a splintering sound. That was the compartment holding the cash drawer. The intruder got to his feet.

"Okay," the man on the other side of the counter asked guardedly.

"Sure. Get over and watch the door. I'll fix this guy now."

Sawyer's unshared relief felt as if they were made of lead. His employee was being robbed before his eyes. Utterly helpless. He had failed in the first position of trust. The police.

"A feeling of near terror possessed him. He wet his lips with his tongue as he saw the safe coming towards him."

"Listen, boys."

"Pipe down if you want to keep on livin'. One more rip and I'll drop you..."

John Sawyer felt that his back and make it snappy. Keep your mitts up!"

The man dropped to his knees. He must have had a coin in his hand. Sawyer felt it bite cruelly into his ankles as they were jerked against the chair rungs.

There was a slight sound near by. The bandit at Sawyer's side squatted motionless, listening. His confederate evidently shared his alarm and shifted his position to peer through the glass door panel into the street. A motor car was near, its engine running.

John Sawyer had a confused recollection of what happened after that. He felt rather than heard a dim form appear out of the darkness. One of his arms was upraised. Something crashed down on the head of the kneeling man. There was a stab of flame from the front of the office. A stunning blast. The gunman dashed out through the door. The car's motor raced an instant. The sound faded.

Roused by this startling turn of events, Sawyer's arm fell. He pushed frantically at the heavy, shuddering sagging against his pinioned legs, thrust the inert body, saw it topple to the floor. Trembling with excitement, he caught at the desk with both hands, dragged himself and his anchoring chair to it. He raised himself with some difficulty, groped for the lamp chain with one hand. A low cry burst from him.

"Sonny!"

John Sawyer lay on his back at the end of the desk, his feet in the circle of light cast by the swinging lamp. His eyes were closed, their heavy lashes against the colorless cheeks. Sawyer slumped in his chair and hunted feverishly for his pocket knife. Two frenzied slashes and he was free. In an instant, he was lifting his boy in his arms.

"Son!" he groaned. "What have they done to you?"

John's eyelids flickered. He stared into the face bending over him as one roused from sleep.

"What's the matter?" he demanded querulously. "What are you? Oh, I know now. My head hurts..."

Sawyer passed his hand gently over the smooth hair. There was no sign of the wound he feared. His fingers encountered a lump behind the boy's ear.

"Duch!"

"You must have struck yourself there. I was so afraid you were shot!"

"I think I was, Dad. My shoulder burns like fire. No... the other one."

Sawyer made a cautious search inside John's shirt. When he withdrew his hand the fingers were wet.

"They did hit you, Son," he said quietly. "Nothing very serious."

"I'm all right," John turned his face towards his father. The arm that encircled him. "I feel kinda sick at my stomach," he muttered apologetically.

"I'll see I can't make you more comfortable. You must be very still."

John Sawyer suddenly realized his situation. In his anxiety he very nearly had torn away his fleeing bandit's arm that encircled him. "I feel kinda sick at my stomach," he muttered apologetically.

"Hello! Central Garage calling. There's been a holdup."

He laid down the phone and turned once more to his patient. It was strange that no one seemed to have heard that shot. The police would be coming in a minute.

CAPITALS OF EUROPE.

X—Dublin, Irish Free State.

An old riddle asks:

"Why must Ireland be rich?"

The answer is, "Because its capital is always Dublin. That is, Dublin or doubling."

O'Connell Street, Dublin.

If anyone's capital kept doubling and the rate of doubling was rapid, he would grow rich. If one cent were made to double each month (two cents at the end of the first month, four cents the second month, eight cents the third month) the sum would amount to millions of dollars at the end of 36 months, and at the end of five years (60 months) it would amount to more money than the total wealth of any nation, past or present. If this seems hard to believe, figure it out for yourself.

Dublin's wealth has not kept "doubling." Indeed, Ireland as a whole is not a rich country. In many parts of it the people are very poor. They are poor but kind; their kindness is worth more than money.

In travels through Ireland, I found some cities and towns behind the times, with cobblestone streets and shabby hotels; but Dublin seemed very modern and well-planned. I visited one of the finest public parks I have seen anywhere.

The Emerald Isle, as Ireland is often called, has been the scene of much trouble. For centuries there were quarrels with England, and sometimes the quarrels led to bloodshed. Ireland was a member, but did not vote, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The reasons for the trouble are too long for us to take up in detail, but they were in large part about land and religion. Centuries ago English nobles obtained large estates in Ireland, and the estates were passed on from father to son in the English families. Many of the nobles never visited their Irish estates, but took profits or rentals from them. This made many Irish folk bitter.

"Home Rule for Ireland" became the cry of Irishmen; and at last in 1921 a new Irish parliament was set up. The new parliament was a large measure of home rule for the southern and central part of the country, the area now called the Irish Free State.

More than two-thirds of the people in Ireland are in the Irish Free State. Eamon de Valera was chosen president of the country in 1932. The chief governing body, the dail, meets in Dublin, which has a population growing toward the half-million mark.

Text of Roosevelt Message

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP) Text of President Roosevelt's security message to Congress:

To the Congress of the United States:

I am addressing you on June 8, 1934, I summarized the main objectives of our American program. Among these was, and is, the security of the men, women and children of the nation against certain hazards and vicissitudes of life. This purpose is an essential part of our task.

In my annual message to you I promised to submit a definite program of action. This I do in the form of a report to me by a committee on economic security, appointed by me for the purpose of surveying the field and of recommending the basis of legislation.

I am gratified with the work of this committee, and of those who have helped it: the technical board on economic security drawn from various departments of the government, the advisory committee on economic security, consisting of informed and public-spirited private citizens and a number of other advisory groups, including a committee on actuarial consultation, a medical advisory board, a dental advisory committee, a hospital advisory committee, a public health advisory committee, a child welfare committee and an advisory committee on employment relief.

COMMITTEE READY TO ASSIST.

All of those who participated in this notable task of planning this major legislative proposal are ready and willing, at any time, to consult with and assist in any way the appropriate congressional committees and members, with respect to detailed aspects.

It is my best judgment that this legislation should be brought forward with a minimum of delay. Federal action is necessary to act on and conditioned upon the actions of states. Forty-four legislatures are meeting or will meet soon. In order that the necessary state action may be taken promptly it is important that the federal government proceed speedily.

The detailed report of the committee sets forth a series of proposals that will appear to the sound sense of the American people. It has not attempted the impossible nor has it failed to exercise sound caution and consideration of all of the factors concerned. It is a sound, realistic, and responsible plan, and the capacity of industry to assume financial responsibilities and the fundamental necessity of proceeding in a manner that will meet the enthusiastic support of citizens of all sorts.

It is overwhelmingly important to avoid any danger of permanently discrediting the sound and necessary policy of federal legislation for economic security by attempting to apply it on too ambitious a scale before actual experience has provided guidance for the permanently safe direction of such efforts.

SOUND IDEA.

The establishment of sound means toward a greater future economic security of the American people is dictated by a prudent consideration of the hazards involved in our national life. No one can guarantee this country against the dangers of future depressions but we can reduce these dangers.

We can eliminate many of the factors that cause economic depression and we can provide the means of recovery. This is a sound idea for economic security is at once a measure of prevention and a method of alleviation.

It is my hope that the dreadful consequences of economic insecurity—and delay. This plan presents a more equitable and more lasting and more permanent solution than any other.

We cannot afford to neglect the plain duty before us. I strongly recommend action to attain the objectives sought in this report.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

The White House, January 17, 1935.

ROOSEVELT SEEKS PROMPT PASSAGE OF SECURITY PLANS

Since the measure involves taxation, the house must act first.

The president asserted to Congress the program had not attempted the impossible "nor has it failed to exercise sound caution and consideration of all the factors concerned."

"It is overwhelmingly important to avoid any danger of permanently discrediting the sound and necessary policy of federal legislation for economic security by attempting to apply it on too ambitious a scale before actual experience has provided guidance for the permanently safe direction of such efforts," he said.

"The place of such a fundamental in our future civilization is too precious to be jeopardized now by extraneous action," he said.

Many members of Congress took this as a warning against attempts to liberalize the plan.

Comment on the plan and the message was divided, but Senator Borah, republican of Idaho, issued a statement calling the plan "wholly inadequate."

"I am not satisfied to make an outlay of nearly a billion dollars for armaments and $15 dollars for old age," he said.

Legislative Boundary Line.

Mr. Roosevelt laid down three boundary lines for the legislation:

1. It should be self-sustaining except for the money to set it going.

2. Save for old-age insurance, the states should run the plans along paths marked out by the federal government.

3. Control of the funds should be in the hands of the federal government.

The president said studies were being continued with a view to working out a health insurance plan.

For the start of the entire plan, he said, about a hundred million dollars would be needed.

Mr. Roosevelt sketched in broad outline the lines for the unemployment insurance and old-age plans to follow.

Further details were outlined in the working drafts of legislation introduced in both houses, brought forward first by Senator Wagner, an administration stalwart, who specializes in social legislation. The bill was introduced in the house by Representative Lewis immediately after the reading of the message. Lewis is co-author with Wagner of the unemployment insurance bill of last session.

Hearings Set Next Week.

While the senate cannot act on the bill until after it comes from the house, Chairman Harrison, of the finance committee, agreed to begin hearings there next week.

The bills introduced encompassed the entire plan. For old-age insurance, they followed the three-year plan, with monthly payments ranging up to $30 a month.

A $300,000,000 appropriation for 1935 and $150,000,000 a year thereafter would be needed to carry out the plan.

Certain requirements, which the states must meet, are that the pension should not be denied any person over 65 who has not enough income to live decently.

For the compulsory part of the plan, the employer would contribute for each of his workers amounts graduated upward every five years from one per cent during the five-year period beginning in 1937, to five per cent after 1957.

Half of the tax of the employer would be deducted from the pay of the employee thus insured.

The worker becomes eligible for the pension when he reaches 65 if he has been paid for at least one year in the five-year period and he is no longer working.

Two Scales for Pension Amount.

The amount of the pension received would be divided into two scales to take care of those under pension plans before 1942 and those who come under after that date.

For those in the first class, the pension would range upward from 15 per cent of his average monthly wage. If he had been paid for him for 200 weeks, he would get the minimum.

For those in the second class, the pension would be added for the next 40 weeks of tax to apply for the next 200. Similarly, the pension would increase according to the length of time he was paid.

For those in the second class, a similar system would be followed, except that the pension would begin at 10 per cent of his average wage.

Voluntary Plan.

A person under 65 might buy an old-age annuity, not to exceed $400 in maturity, by the rate of payment to be worked out by a social insurance board.

On unemployment insurance: Employers of more than ten workers to pay a three per cent payroll tax, the amount of the tax, however, to fluctuate according to the federal reserve board index of industrial production until 1938. After that year, it would be rigidly set at three per cent.

A refund of 90 per cent to employers who contribute to state funds, the creation of standards for the states, giving workers, among other things, the right to strike without losing their right to benefits.

The placing of the treasury in charge of the fund.

Provision of $5,000,000 for 1935 and $50,000,000 a year thereafter to encourage state laws. The money would help the states to pay administration expense.

No state would receive allocations from this fund unless its law measured up to federal standards.

Aid to dependent children:

An annual appropriation of $25,000,000.

Allotments on a matching basis to states.

Federal requirements for adequate aid to be met.

Aid for maternal and child health:

An annual $4,000,000 appropriation: $20,000 to go to each state: $1,000,000 on the basis of the dollar basis: $800,000 on a basis of need, and the remainder for demonstration and research.

Care of crippled children:

A $3,000,000 annual appropriation: $20,000 to each state and the remainder on a basis of need except for certain matching requirements.

Child welfare:

An annual $1,500,000 appropriation: $10,000 to each state and at least $1,000,000 on a basis of population with a 50-50 matching requirement.

Public health:

$10,000,000 annual appropriation: $2,000,000 to be used in investigation and research, the remainder allotted to the states on a basis of need.

Administration:

Divided among the relief administrator, the secretaries of labor and the treasury.

With Georgia's Lawmakers...

Representative O. K. Armstrong, of Green County, Missouri, was a visitor at the house of representatives Thursday and made a short talk to the members.

Armstrong said although he was a Missouri republican from Springfield, he is in accord with the views of democratic Georgia on states rights and other matters. His talk was applauded by the house.

The Rev. T. P. Calloway, veteran Georgia Baptist leader, of Thomasville, was accorded the privileges of the floor of the senate Thursday by special resolution.

Fiddlin' John Carson, of Cherokee county, is on the job as doorkeeper of the house. Fiddlin' John provided the security for the campaign and the crowds during the campaign and the morning before the session to the 1935 house.

Andrew J. Kinger, clerk of the house, announced Thursday that Herbert H. Wind, editor of the Call Messenger, who served as messenger of the 1935 house, would become attached to his office as an assistant.

Mr. Wind did not offer for re-election as messenger, and the post was taken over by Lawrenceville, without opposition.

President Charles D. Redwine Thursday obtained unanimous consent of the senate to make a change in a committee chairmanship. Senator Redwine announced that through an error Senator H. Dixon Smith, of Columbus, was made chairman of the committee on enrollment instead of Senator C. Z. Harden, of Ashburn.

Senator Harden now becomes chairman of the committee.

Representative Pat Campbell, of Newton county, offered a new bill Thursday to provide for the death penalty for holdup men.

"The people of my county are getting afraid to come to Atlanta at night," Campbell said. "There is too much armed robbery here and a stiff penalty ought to halt it."

A similar bill already has been presented to the house by Representative Sutton, of Wilkes county.

Early American Motif Chosen For Decoration of Pund Home

By Sally Forth.

INSPIRED, no doubt, by the natural surroundings which furnished the background for American historical annals, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pund have recently completed a home in Quincy, Mass., which reflects in every detail the early American influence.

The Punds, Peter and his beautiful wife, the former Susan Broyles, of Atlanta, have established a charming home in the historic little city in the Back Bay state, and is situated at 15 Welgate circle, just off Reservoir road, and very adjacent to Boston.

Of wide white shingles, the house is two stories in height and is finished with dark green shutters. The colonial door has a bronze knocker, and a bull's-eye glass, and on either side of the door are green ceiling are most effective, with the white chintz draperies trimmed with green fringe. Ten early American spindle-back chairs are upholstered in exquisite needlepoint with green background centered by a design of gray-colored flowers. Corner cupboards hold antique china in colorful design. Red and brown and very mannish is the den, one end being incased in bookshelves.

Upstairs Mr. and Mrs. Pund's charming bedroom is white-walled and carries out a patriotic note in red and white and blue draperies. Large red crystal stars are used as the drapery tiebacks. Old-fashioned hooked rugs of white centered by clusters of red flowers are strewn over the floor, displaying a motif of coziness.

Decatur Club To Present Musical Program on Sunday

The musical department of the fine arts division of the Decatur Women's Club, of which Mrs. S. R. Christie Jr. is chairman, will sponsor an orchestral and vocal ensemble program at the woman's club on Sunday afternoon, January 20, at 3:30 o'clock. Co-chairmen for the afternoon are Mrs. Reynolds Clark and Mrs. Gussie O'Neal Johnson, who have arranged an interesting hour of music.

Mrs. Clark presents a group of 20 musicians from the Greater Music Study Club, of which she is director. Mrs. Johnson presents five advanced singers from her private class in solo, duet and ensemble numbers. Miss Edith Beyer, pianist and teacher of Atlanta, will play the accompaniment for Mrs. Johnson's students. Mrs. J. B. Hosmer, chairman of the ceramics department of the fine arts club, will present an art exhibit.

Receiving the guests will be Mesdames Armond Hendee, Claude Lamers, William Griffith, Helen C. Henderson and Vernon Frank. At the table Mrs. Howard Clark Smith and Mrs. Virginia Goudey will preside. Those serving will be Misses Ruth Dabney Smith, Elizabeth Jackson, Mrs. Hugo Johnson and Misses Mary O'Neal, Mary Green and Martha Young, of Agnes Scott. The public is invited.

ters of red flowers are strewn over the floor, displaying a motif of coziness.

In all, this lovely home and furnishings reflect the charm and personality of the owners, upon whom Atlanta refuses to sever claim despite their distant abode. Mrs. Pund inherits much of the artistic talent of her mother, Mrs. Arnold Broyles, and throughout her home one could easily see the effect of her individuality and decorative ideas.

HOLLAND'S Magazine is to be congratulated on securing Nelle Womack Hines, of Millerville, to contribute an interesting series of articles appearing monthly under the title, "Southern Personalities." No one, in Sally's opinion, is more fitted to write about personality among famous southern women than Mrs. Hines. Being an outstanding personality herself, she readily senses those qualities in others that contribute to that indefinable something known as personality.

In the January issue, Mrs. Hines writes of Mrs. John Nance Garner, whom she describes as the first aide to the vice president. Mrs. Garner's life, by virtue of her position, is necessarily an interesting one, but under Mrs. Hines' facile pen it becomes fascinating. Not that the Second Lady of the Land is not a fascinating person, but how satisfactory it is to Holland's readers to have such fascination transferred to its pages!

And, by the way, this interesting southern personality featured for next month an article by a well-known Atlanta, W. Ray Hastings. According to the announcement, his contribution will be of particular interest to the gardening fraternity, for it is entitled "Garden Sensations of 1935." Mr. Hastings, who is chairman of the All-American Council, submits an authoritative discussion of the new flowers the council has designated as worthy of introduction to American gardeners.

UNUSUAL sentiment lies behind the decision of members of the Debant Club of 1934-35 to dedicate a playground at the Cornelia Moore Day Nursery in memory of Helen Cay Parker. Had the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Parker lived, she would have made her debut with the group planning to memorialize her through a well-equipped playground to be used by little children.

The debutantes of 1934-35 adopted the nursery as their particular charity, and have bent their efforts upon bringing happiness to the little tots cared for at the nursery, which memorializes the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Moore. The nursery occupies a commodious home on Washington street, and bought several years ago by members of the Cornelia Moore Auxiliary to care for the little children during the absence of their working mothers, and is one of the worthy charities maintained in Atlanta.

WHAT'S in a name, anyway? Take tiny little Ruth Rowbotham Strickland, for instance. This future debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Strickland, who was born Wednesday morning at Emory University hospital, lived one whole day without a given name. Finally, and quite appropriately, the name Ruth was chosen for the little babe, thereby serving what we might say was a double purpose. Her mother is the former Ruth Rowbotham, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rowbotham, and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. W. H. Strickland, of Richmond, Ga., also bears the name of Ruth.

However, the latest Ruth will be called "Robbie," which happens to be the endearing nickname by which the countless friends know her maternal grandfather, George B. Rowbotham, of Boston. The latter, incidentally, is in Atlanta, having come especially to see little "Robbie." When little "Robbie" arrives at the stage of dollies and doll furniture, she will have hand-made walnut furnishings for her playhouse, which will be inherited from a Boston origin. They were given the baby's mother by her maternal aunt, Mrs. Louis Fuller, of Boston, the former Ethel Rowbotham, and many happy hours playing house with Ruth Rowbotham, and we can rest assured that she will relish her childhood pleasures when little Robbie plays "house." And one more thing the new babe will have which is of interest is her mother's antique high chair.

Miss Catherine Jentzen Weds Mr. Brisbane at Church Rites

The marriage on Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock of Miss Catherine Jentzen and Eugene Charles Brisbane was solemnized at a nuptial mass at St. Anthony's church by Rev. Father P. J. O'Connor. The altar was decorated with Easter lilies and palms, and seven-branched candelabra held white burning tapers.

Miss Rosina Asmus, the organist, presented a musical program before and during the ceremony, and Mrs. E. L. Callahan sang several selections. Miss Jentzen was her sister's maid of honor, and was gown in dusty pink crepe, worn with brown accessories, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and pink snapdragons. Austin Brisbane, of Columbia, S. C., was his brother's best man. The lovely bride entered with her brother, John H. Jentzen, who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of Chi-nese blue crepe, fashioned as a tunic model, the overdress being embroidered in silver, completed by blue accessories.

The bride is the younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Jentzen, and is a graduate of Sacred Heart School and St. Joseph's College, Emmettery, Md. Mr. Brisbane was educated at Marietta College and Georgia Tech. He is connected with the Murray company.

Miss Margaret Smith Is Honor Guest

Miss Margaret Page Smith, whose marriage to Dr. Badie Travis Clark will be solemnized on January 19, continues to be feted at a round of social events. On January 5 Mrs. Cushty was hostess at a bridge party honoring Miss Smith. Mrs. Ivy was assisted by her daughter, Miss Zaidie Smith. Miss Smith was honored at a shower and bridge party given Saturday by Mrs. H. E. Smith at her home on Copeland avenue.

On Sunday evening Mrs. Oliver Worley Jr. was hostess at a buffet supper at her home on Piedmont avenue in honor of Miss Smith, and was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Samuel A. Holbrook. On January 15 Miss Smith was honored by a bridge party given by Mrs. C. L. Dennis at her home on Glenridge drive. On Thursday night Miss Smith was honored by a bridge party given by her mother, Mrs. W. F. Humphries Jr., at the home of her mother on Moreland avenue.

ant of the bride and her daughters, Misses Margaret and Alberta Jenkins.

Child Welfare Association Elects Roster of Officers

Dr. Robert W. Burns was re-elected president of the Child Welfare Association at the annual meeting held on Thursday at the headquarters at 779 Juniper street. The corps of officers elected to serve with Dr. Burns included Mrs. Frank H. Neely, vice president; Mrs. Frank Harwell, recording secretary; Mrs. D. C. Black, corresponding secretary, and Ralph Dean, treasurer.

New members affiliated with the association are Dean Raimundo de Oviya, Mesdames J. K. Starr, Harriet Hinds, S. W. Truitt and Paul H. Jones.

Outstanding reports were made by Mesdames Frank Neely, D. R. Paige, Paul Potter, Arthur Bird, George McCarty Jr., and Walter Dillon, Charles Currie, Mesdames Wiley Ballard and Comer Woodward.

Miss Dorothy Cronise is executive secretary of the association. Dr. Robert W. Burns praised Mrs. Frank Neely, who he said was too modest to tell what was back of her report. During 1934, the association cared for 519 children as cases actually accepted, but an additional 219 children were aided.

During 1934, 222 foster homes have been obtained for these children, compared with the 100 homes of 1933. The association spent $44,282.64 during the year. Mrs. C. E. Harrison said a total of 6,760 garments were donated the children last year, and of these only 1,012 were used garments.

Julia Jackson C. of C. To Meet Friday.

Miss Ruth Blair, state historian; Mrs. J. Lawrence McCord, president of the Atlanta U. D. C.; Mrs. Otis Poundstone, third vice president of U. D. C., and Mrs. J. N. Bateman will be honor guests when the Julia Jackson chapter of the Confederate Memorial Hall, Mr. Kurtz will give a paper on the life of Robert E. Lee in honor of Lee's birthday.

Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity Gives Dinner and Dance on January 19

The Georgia Tech Chapter of Delta Sigma Phi will entertain at a dinner and dance on Saturday evening, January 19, at the chapter house on Williams street. The following young ladies have been invited: Mesdames Margaret Meris, Helen Aycock, Frances Sisson, Marion Oliver, Marion Bell, Rosa Teague, Eleanor Wilkinson, Dorothy Smith, Norma Lee Phaup, Ruth Shannon, Esther Richardson and others. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Herrin and Mrs. James Stanley Moore will also be present.

Mrs. Lloyd-Jones To Be Honored

Among the distinguished women visiting the Young Women's Christian Association this week is Mrs. Silas Lloyd-Jones, of New York, a member of the Y. W. C. A. national board, who will be honor guest at a tea Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, given in the "Y" parlors, 37 Auburn avenue. Mrs. Lloyd-Jones, who is an expert authority on matters of personnel and administrative policies, will confer with the personnel committee at a luncheon given at Peacock Alley and then will be introduced to staff, board, committee women, business girls and others at an informal tea.

During the afternoon Mrs. Lloyd-Jones will visit the Phyllis Wheatley branch, where Mrs. E. Marvin Underwood and her committee on colored work will discuss branch affairs. Because of her wide experience as a volunteer worker in various capacities in the Y. W. C. A. and other organizations, Mrs. Lloyd-Jones serves as a valuable resource, bringing many new ideas and suggestions. She was formerly chairman of headquarters of the National Council of Students and is now on the executive committee of the national board for personnel authority.

Mrs. Huff, of Texas, Honored at Luncheon.

Mrs. John Bridges Huff, of Ft. Worth, Texas, was the guest of honor at a beautiful bridge-luncheon on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Robert Hogg on Muscogee avenue. Covers were laid for 28 friends of the hostess. Others entertaining for this popular visitor are Mrs. George Hiles, Mrs. Robert E. Smith, Mrs. Charles Owens, Mrs. Henry Collingsworth, Mrs. E. D. Kitchens and Mrs. Edward Fisk. Mrs. Huff is the former Miss Stella Pyrom Hogg, of Senola, and has many friends throughout the state.

National Hadassah President Speaks Here This Evening

The Atlanta unit of Junior Hadassah will sponsor the service Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Ahavath Achim synagogue, with Mrs. Edward Jacobs, of New York city, national president of Senior Hadassah, as speaker on the Rothchild-Hadassah University hospital, which will be the medical center of the near east. Mrs. Jacobs will be introduced by Miss Jennie Shamos, president of Atlanta Junior Hadassah.

Mrs. Jacobs is national president of Senior Hadassah for the third time, having served two previous terms from 1930 to 1932, and is one of the outstanding leaders in the Zionist movement in America. She has made several trips to Palestine and also resided there with her family for a year, thus obtaining a direct insight of the conditions existing there.

Miss Pansy Tisinger Weds Mr. Brown.

CARROLLTON, Ga., Jan. 17.—The marriage of Miss Pansy Tisinger to Herman F. Brown was solemnized at noon on Wednesday, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. G. W. Tisinger. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Clark, in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends.

Following the ceremony music was rendered by Mrs. T. J. Aycock and R. D. Tisinger, brother of the bride, lit the candles on the altar.

An altar of palms and ferns formed a background for the seven candelabra, whose light shed a glow over the scene. A basket of American beauty roses and ferns formed the center of the altar, and smaller bowls of narcissi were effectively arranged. Garlands of smilax were gracefully entwined on the staircase, which the bride and groom descended.

The bride's brunette beauty was emphasized by her gown of dark blue crepe, made along simple lines, offset by a white collar and a small hat with a bow of matching blue tulle and featured a short face veil. The accessories were of blue and white. Her bouquet was of tallies and roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Tisinger, mother of the bride, wore a model of black crepe with lace. Mrs. Brown, mother, chose a dress of blue crepe with a fox fur.

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. R. D. Tisinger. The dining table was covered with a white linen, with a bowl of lilies of the valley and a miniature bride and bridegroom. A white wedding bell hung from the chandelier.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. G. W. Tisinger and the late Mr. Tisinger. She is a graduate of Georgia Vocational and Trade school, at Monroe, Emory University and Emory University training school.

For the past two years she has held the position of superintendent of the Carrollton clinic.

The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Brown, of Carrollton. Until a few years ago he made his home in New York city. Mr. and Mrs. Brown left for an extended wedding trip to New York, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Quebec.

Cordelia Brown Class.

The first anniversary of the Cordelia Brown Bible class of the First Baptist church, was celebrated Tuesday evening at the home of the class teacher, Mrs. F. W. Myatt, on Adair avenue. Class growth was most marked at the meeting, both in numbers present and resume of great strides in class work during the first year of organization.

A. B. Smith, superintendent of the adult department of the church, who with Mrs. Smith was among those present, gave some helpful suggestions during the business meeting of the class. A musical program followed consisting of vocal solos by Mrs. Oxford, and a quartet composed of class members.

Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs Holds Quarterly Meeting

Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs held its quarterly meeting at the Biltmore on Thursday at which Mrs. H. G. Hastings, chairman, Talulah Falls school, announced a silver gift of $25 in the name of "Anna Steese Richardson," given by a group of friends at a dinner given at the Atlanta Athletic Club honoring Mrs. Richardson.

Mrs. Ben Parker was chairman with Mrs. Hastings. Mrs. Oscar Palmour, the president, was in the chair.

Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, Atlanta attorney and clubwoman, discussed the proposed national amendment affecting child labor, stating a national law is necessary in order to have uniform regulatory child labor laws and a protection to all states having enacted such laws. She considers the ratification of the proposed amendment by the present congress, which understands and is sympathetic with southern conditions, of major importance to the south. The code, she said, regulates employment of children under the age of 18 in hazardous industries only and its benefits will soon expire, placing the status of child labor the same as before the inauguration of NRA codes.

Handcraft made by children of Braille classes at Calhoun school and products made by the blind at the Atlanta Community Shop were on exhibit and Mrs. S. R. Greenblatt, chairman of federation work for the blind, told of activities of the fifth district chapter, Georgia Association of Workers for the Blind, in sight conservation and the education of the blind. Many sighted persons having studied Braille in order to obtain employment, the association has given a "Talking Book" for use of blind and sight conservation classes at Calhoun school.

Mrs. Hastings presented a membership where possible and urged Atlanta women to ask for and buy brooms made in the Atlanta Community Shop.

Mrs. J. F. Levey made an appeal for support of Steiner clinic, outlined a proposed plan for a chair of nursing at Georgia University, purporting to raise the standard of the nursing profession, and announced a benefit card party for the clinic to be given January 23 at 2:30 p. m. at the Standard Club. She invited those present to buy reservations and attend. Communicate with Mrs. K. L. Pepper or Mrs. Fred Scheer.

Miss Jessie Hopkins, of Carnegie library, chairman of literature of the fine arts department, and Miss Ruth Blair, of the Rhodes Memorial Hall, will be heard on the Atlanta Federation hour over WSB at early dates. The federation programs will be given during the last week of each month, featuring speakers and music, and is under the direction of Miss Nana Tucker, Mrs. Oscar Palmour, president of the federation, will be speaker for January.

National League Owners Meet Today To Decide Braves' Fate

NEW LOOP HEAD IS ANTICIPATING LITTLE TROUBLE

Says Situation Does Not Look as Tough as at First.

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Baseball's skies looked much brighter today to Ford Frick, president of the National league, as the moguls of the circuit rode the rails toward New York and endeavored their brains over the problem of what to do about the Boston Braves and the wolves snapping at their heels in the form of racing dogs.

"After a week or so of wrestling with this thing," said Frick, the young newspaperman who succeeded the retired John A. Heydler in December, "I don't anticipate a great amount of trouble getting things straightened out once the owners get here. Frankly, it doesn't look nearly as tough as it did."

OWNERS ARE TO WAY.

The owners aren't due to arrive until late tonight or early tomorrow, so there was no way of checking their thoughts on the subject. F. K. Wrigley, of the Cubs; Sam Breadon, of the Cardinals; Powell Crosley, of the Reds, and Gerry Nugent, of the Phillies, won't get in until tomorrow. Emil Fuchs, submerged in the tangle of the Braves and turning to dog racing in Braves field as a financial life preserver, will be here late tonight with Charles F. Adams, who owns most of the Braves' mortgages but doesn't want to add the club to his other widespread business interests.

There were intimations that Frick's first smile in the days came through having contacted at least two persons or groups interested in purchasing the Braves, and inaugurating a new deal in Boston National league baseball.

"There are people interested," said Frick, "some here and some in Boston, but I can't say more about that right now. The situation definitely is much better, though."

A NEW SETUP.

A new financial setup for the Braves admittedly is the solution of the problem, baseball men agreed. In an emergency, the league, with a faintly similar precedent established in Philadelphia in 1903, can take over the Braves and run them until a purchaser is found, that is the last resort, however.

As the situation now stands, Fuchs, nominally the president of the club but severely hampered in his actions by the indebtedness seems almost certain to step out of the picture in Boston. Adams is generally regarded as seeking only to force the league's hand and a general straightening out of the situation.

Adams, controlling the ball club now in everything but name, also controls the holding corporation that leases Braves field to the Boston club. It was termination of this lease in favor of an agreement with a kennel club seeking to stage dog races there this summer that rendered the Braves homeless and forced the present show-down.

ROUGH MATCHES SLATED TONIGHT

Jim Hesslyn, the Australian champion and one of the big boys among the wrestling circle, will meet Hugh Winn, former light-heavyweight champion of the south, in the main event of the city auditorium tonight on Promoters Roby and Betts' wrestling card. The first match starts at 8:15 o'clock.

The Australian has agreed to beat Winn, the Atlanta grappler, two falls within an hour's time or forfeit his share of the purse. Hesslyn is a big, powerful grappler and is confident he can turn the trick. But he will have no picnic against Winn. The latter has just completed a successful tour of Florida and Cuba, where he met and defeated some of the best men in the country.

Black Jack Ross, tough Chicago Greek, claims he will give John Harkin a lesson in roughness when the two meet in the semi-final, one-hour match. Ross needs no introduction to the Atlanta fans.

Finally, one of the roughest but most scientific wrestlers ever developed in the south, says he is going to carry the Chicago Greek for a ride, but those who know Ross doubt this very much.

The opening match will hold its share of the spotlight when Charlie Norman, Grant Park boxer, meets Glenn Cowan, the Atlanta policeman. Reserve seats are on sale at Five Points Soda Company or call Main 2539.

THE SPORTLIGHT

A MIGHTY GOLFER, BUT AN UNKNOWN.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17.—When you bat around in this sporting game for more than 30 years, you stumble over stories beyond belief. I have just come upon one of these rare episodes in the person of John Montagu, an amateur golfer who never plays in tournaments of any sort—and yet he is a golfer who would be a wrecking whirlwind in any amateur championship and on a par with almost any pro.

In the first place, John Montagu runs neck and neck with Jimmy Thompson, of Long Beach, as the longest consistent hitter in the world. And he has all the backing anyone wants that he will outwit Thompson, one of the mightiest maulers of all times.

In addition to this, he can play any type of shot the game calls for, and there are few better putters.

He is more likely to break 70 than go over 70 on any championship course you give him—under pressure, where he is at his best—and with all his power, he is one of the finest golf stylists you will see in a long time. He broke 70 ten consecutive times on one of the most difficult scoring courses around Los Angeles.

Only a year or so ago, he played a United States open champion, who shot a 67 over his home course. Yet Montagu beat him 2 and 1 with a 65.

He has played many of the hardest courses in California in 63 to 66—and yet you probably never heard his name. Once, on 9 holes, Leo Diegel shot a 35 against him, and was 2 down. "You can have him," Leo said to me.

He is from 10 to 15 yards beyond Lawson Little in distance, and one of the best iron players in golf—but he is still nationally unknown. For one thing, Montagu swings a 17-ounce driver as if it were a feather duster.

He played with him at Lakeside, Riviera and other hard courses around Los Angeles and he handled most of the long 4-par holes, from 430 to 450 yards, with a drive and a niblick over soft fairways.

He has the grip of doom in his hands, which are like active steel. He has the ability to concentrate with a keen, alert mind.

He would be murder in an amateur championship—here or in Great Britain—and a distinct threat in any open.

"Why don't you enter one of these championships?" I asked him.

"I'm not interested in championships," he said. "I like golf for other things."

Montagu comes from the east—he has mining interests in Arizona—he is one of the most pleasant of companions you will meet—a square-shooter who will at least try to give you the best of it.

Golf With the Head. Here is a peculiar angle of Montagu's game. Built something like Bobby Jones and Gene Sarazen, he is far more powerful than either. He has every physical attribute. On a rainy day at Riviera, against a slight wind, I saw him drive into a barren at the 12th hole, which appeared to be 300 yards from the tee.

"To me," he said, "golf is played with the head, mind or brain—or whatever you care to call it. Of course there are fundamentals of stance, grip and swing. But if there is no mental picture, the rest of course, is a mere guess. This means almost endless concentration, if you are under pressure. And there is no thrill in any game unless you are under pressure."

"You mean the test of form, style and fundamentals in general comes from pressure?" I asked.

"In any game," he said. "Brain, courage, nerve, can go only so far. They must be backed up by skill on the job—or they may mean little."

"Which is 100 per cent true."

"Of course," he added. "If mechanical skill isn't supported by brains and courage or nerve, you may get the same result. That is why we have so few real champions."

Which is also true.

One remarkable feature of Montagu's game is his combination of accuracy and power. He is rarely off the line. After his tee shot, there is little left to do—yet his short pitching, his chip shots and his putting are on a par with the rest of his game.

He uses practically the same grip that Bobby Jones and Tommy Armour use, left-hand power and control.

"But at the finish," he says, "I hit against that left hand and left side."

"When will you play in an open or amateur championship?" I asked.

"Maybe never," he said. "I don't know. I'm still not interested. I have other things in mind."

But any golfer in the world, amateur or pro, who wants to play his own dough on the line, will find Mr. Montagu in a receptive mood. And that bars nobody.

Albany Beats Mercer, 45 to 30

ALBANY, Ga., Jan. 17.—A last-half rally netted the Albany "Y" Blues a 45-30 victory over the Mercer Bears on the local court. The initial half ended with the Albany five holding a slender 18-17 lead, which the Bears overcame and forced in front at the start of the final period. At this stage of the game the Blues uncovered a passing attack that baffled the Bears, and once in the lead they coasted to victory.

It was a typical Albany-Mercer battle with both teams suffering heavily from loss of starting players via the personal foul route. Near the close of hostilities Stanford, Mercer captain, and Red Allen, Albany guard, were ejected from the game when they swapped a few punches during a close mixup for the ball. Porter and Harlick were also lost to the Bears by fouls, and Spence, Albany center, went out the same way early in the last half.

SMITHES PLAY CLEARER SPORTS ALBANY TONIGHT NOTED BY GOULD AT GRADY COURT IN RADIO SPEECH

Typists Face Decatur at J. P. C.; Purples in Savannah.

By Roy White.

Six Atlanta prep basketball teams will be in action this afternoon and tonight and city fans will have their choice of three excellent games. Decatur and Commercial, bitter North Georgia Interscholastic conference rivals and co-champions with Marietta for football honors, play at 3 o'clock on the Jewish Progressive Club court in one of the choice games.

Tech High, undefeated except for a game with the high-scoring Tech freshmen five, plays Albany High at 8:30 o'clock on the Henry Grady court, and Russell plays at 7:30 o'clock at Druid Hills in the other game.

The Tech High-Albany game will be a feature of the annual shouting night at Tech High. Visitors will be welcomed at the school starting at 7:30 o'clock, with the basketball game scheduled to start at 8:30.

PURPLES AT SAVANNAH. Other games today include G. M. A. and Lanier at Macon, and Boys' High at Savannah. The latter move on to American Saturday night.

The American team is coached by Walter Lovett, a former Atlanta high school player, and played halfback on one of G. M. A.'s undefeated teams several years ago when Sam Burbage was in charge.

Particular interest will be centered about the Decatur-Commercial game on the J. P. C. court this afternoon. Decatur has lost its three first games and will seek a revenge at the hands of Commercial today.

TYPISTS STRONG. The typists with an improved team have won four games and lost two games. Commercial lost to Boys' High and Fort McPherson in close games and have won from R. E. Lee, G. M. A., Russell and Monroe Aggies.

Druid Hills and Russell are fighting for runner-up position in the North Georgia Interscholastic conference standings. Both teams are improved over last year and have been playing good basketball in recent games.

A girls' game will open the Russell-Druid Hills program at 7:30 o'clock, with the boys' game closing the night's entertainment.

J. P. C. DEFEATED BY GULF, 38-29

With the Nichols brothers leading the assault with a combined total of 22 points, the Gulf Orange Disc team emerged victors over the strong J. P. C. team by a score of 38 to 29 at College Park last night.

The Gulf boys gained an early lead, which they maintained throughout the game, the score at the half being 20 to 12. The guard combination of Bynum and O'Connor limited the J. P. C. club to four field goals in the first half.

Howard, for J. P. C., staged a one-man attack in the closing minutes of the game, but the lead established by the Gulf was too much to overcome.

'MARVEL' MEETS ALMAND TONIGHT

The "Masked Marvel" from Birmingham will be given another chance to make good his boast tonight at the Almand arena. He will meet Son Almand, popular Atlanta wrestler, in the feature match of the weekly card at this arena.

This is a return match. The two met last week in the stipulated time of 45 minutes and forfeited the match. The two staged one of the most exciting matches ever seen at the Almand arena and tonight a repetition of that match is expected.

A strong supporting card has been arranged. In the semi-windup Wild Bill Collins, one of Atlanta's toughest wrestlers, is pitted against Teddy Betz, champion of the Greeks from Chicago. This bout should make the main card a real headliner in itself.

Buck Jones, of Atlanta, will meet Leon Fuller, fast coming middleweight in the 30-minute opener. The arena is located on the car line in the heart of Arondele.

Fulton Bag Books

New Holland, Aragon

Fulton Bag and Cotton Mill's basketball players will spend a busy week, as they are scheduled to play the speedy New Holland A. C. at New Holland, Pa., tonight, while they will invade Aragon, Ga., Saturday night for a game with the Athletic Club of that city. Manager Dick Anchors is desirous of securing games for some open dates in the schedule, and challenges all clubs within 100 miles of Atlanta, dates can be secured by writing him at the mill.

'Dutch' Konneman Facing Operation

"Dutch" Konneman, promising fullback of the Georgia Tech freshman football team probably will go under the surgeon's knife for a caustoid operation the last of the month.

Konneman, who hails from Columbia, S. C., has been suffering for some time and now is considered the propitious time to operate, so that he will be ready for football next fall.

He undergoes the operation. Konneman will not be able to participate in spring football work at Tech, which starts January 28.

Yanks To Send Ruth, 5 Others 'Informal' Pacts

By Eddie Briets.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Babe Ruth and five of his less illustrious colleagues will receive only "informal" contracts when the New York Yankees send out their 1935 papers February 1.

Ed Barrow, Yankee business manager, said today Ruth's contract will be tentative because the club's inner circle has no idea what the big fellow intends doing about his baseball future.

The others—Catcher Bill Dickey, Pitchers Johnny Allen and Russell Van Atta and Outfielders Earle Combs and Dixie Walker—are put on the spot until they can show Manager Joe McCarthy they are entirely recovered from the injuries that kept them on the shelf during parts of last season.

"All these fellows except Ruth must report at St. Petersburg and demonstrate they are in perfect physical shape before we offer them formal contracts," Barrow said.

"We can't say that about Ruth because we haven't heard from him since the close of last season and don't know what his plans are."

Ruth has steadfastly insisted he would not sign another player contract and in his latest blast he threatened to quit the game entirely and author a novel if he is not given a managerial berth.

The Yanks are not taking all this too seriously, but they are not going to commit themselves definitely until they know just which way the old home run king is going to jump.

Bob Quinn, business manager of the Dodgers, returned to his desk today after a flying trip to Reading, where he lodged with the affairs of that city's New York-Pennsylvania league club with a view to having the Dodgers.

Masked Five Beats Y Triangles, 33-31

A team composed of former college stars who call themselves the Mexican Masked Marvels proved to be more masked than marvels here last night, but turned in a 33-to-31 victory over the Atlanta "Y" on the J. P. C. court.

Peterson was the leading scorer for the visitors with 11 points. Virlyn Moore, with 12, was high-point man for the Triangles. Phillips played a good game for the Y.

BOX OFFICE TIPPING. "Along with one of the most thrilling years we have ever had in sports in this country, 1934 witnessed a distinct upswing at the box office. There is every reason to expect that 1935, already away to a brisk start, will witness greater prosperity than in any year since 1930. At the same time the fan is likely to get more for his money chiefly because he is more discriminating."

"Up to four or five years ago the trend in American sport was distinctly toward the amateur side of the picture. More money, meaning bigger game receipts and greater glorification of our foremost athletes tended to expand the amateur side of the sports side of athletics. The truth is there was more semi-professionalism than purification. Reformers started what the great deflation finished. The remains a good deal of hypocrisy, especially in college football, but it seems to be definitely on the way out. There is a wholesome interest in amateur sports today that promises to benefit all concerned."

PRO COMEBACK. "Meanwhile professional athletics have staged a conspicuous comeback. There seem to be some who view this year with alarm. They may be misinformed, prejudiced or simply possessed with the reactionary idea that it can't be good, clean sport if the gate receipts are so much in mind. It is true that some professional sports have had to 'clean house' to recapture popular interest."

"Less hampered by tradition and influenced by necessity, they have set the pace in competitive showmanship. Even boxing, the hardest hit of all professional sports, is showing signs of a recovery already marked throughout the country in baseball, football and horse racing—the three biggest money sports—as well as in golf and the development of pro tennis."

"As this may be significant in viewing the new year on a broad sporting basis, but fandom's interest is centered obviously on more personal matters."

BOB JONES' FATE. "How far Bob Jones fare against his old professional golf rivals when he challenges them once more at Augusta?"

"Can Helen Wills Moody come back to play championship tennis after nearly two years' retirement?"

"Will Max Baer prove to the fistic world he is another Dempsey, or merely the hardest hitter in a poor crop of heavyweights?"

"Can the dazzling Dean brothers repeat their wonderful pitching, or will the New York Giants stage a comeback and overthrow the Cardinals?"

"These are among the vital questions to be answered cent a year that promises to furnish all the thrills the most critical observer can ask for."

TWENTY GRAND'S BID. "The horse racing world will watch the comeback of Twenty Grand and the gallant bid of the great Equipoint to outrun all star-thoroughbred field at Santa Anita with $100,000 at stake before turning to the glamor of another Kentucky Derby. Bonaparte and Cunningham will renew one of the greatest foot racing rivalries of all time. . . . Poughkeepsie will see the pulse of east-west rivalry with its rowing drama. . . . Golf's major battles will be fought at Pittsburgh and Cleveland, where the all-star major league baseball show also will be on glittering review. Before the tumult of another world series has subsided, the surge of football warfare will be on again, ending in the race of sectional favorites for the post-season profits of the Rose Bowl."
